

Gun was held to his head, Maeras says

By PAT HAY LUTZ
for the Press-Record

According to testimony on Wednesday, fear for their lives and for the lives of their family members forced Jerry Maeras and Arthur Miller Jr. to cooperate with Thomas Brimberry in the $16 million embezzlement scheme which caused the collapse of the Stix and Company brokerage firm of St. Louis in November, 1981.

During testimony on the third day of the trial against the former Stix senior vice president, both Maeras and Miller related incidents where Brimberry had threatened them with bodily harm if they did not cooperate with him.

Brimberry is charged with three counts of obstructing justice during federal investigations into his income tax liability and into the scheme itself.

Maeras told Defense Attorney Rodney De Villiers that he first signed false stock certificates during an episode where Brimberry kept Maeras in his (Brimberry's) home for six and one-half hours and held a gun to his head to force him to forge the certificates.

"Thomas Brimberry held me in his house for one and one-half hours with a gun to my head and shot two times over my head, sir," Maeras related.

Maeras did not know at the time that the gun was loaded with blanks.

Miller testified that Brimberry had threatened him and his family members when he told Brimberry he was going to turn Brimberry in to Stix officials and the IRS.

Explaining that he asked Brimberry to drive him to the Stix office in St. Louis, Miller said that Brimberry talked him out of going into the building by telling him that he would "be getting a lot of people in trouble."

"Who did Brimberry say would be getting into trouble?" Assistant U.S. Attorney Ronald Kane asked.

"Jim Massa, Jerry Maeras, myself, Tom, and others," Miller answered.

At that point, Miller asked Brimberry to drive him to the IRS office in East St. Louis, Miller testified. Brimberry took him to the office, but warned him that his family might be in danger if Miller told the IRS officials anything about the scheme.

"He (Brimberry) said that 'Jim Massa or Jerry Maeras might have me or my family killed,' Miller testified. "He said that my mom or dad could be hurt."

Miller said that he did not report the activities because of the threats, and that Brimberry took him home after the confrontation.

In earlier testimony on Wednesday, Maeras underwent an intense cross-examination by De Villiers in which De Villiers tried to show discrepancies between this testimony and Maeras' earlier testimony in the Massa-Skinner trial in April.

Testimony by Maeras in that trial indicated that Maeras had conspired with Brimberry and Massa to defraud Stix, and he said Wednesday that he had not known that he was "doing anything wrong" until IRS agents visited him in October, 1981.

De Villiers also had Maeras recall the dates and times of visits from authorities, but Maeras could not produce specific dates during testimony.

Maeras accused Massa's defense attorney F. Lee Bailey of "confusing" him during testimony in Massa's trial. "If those were questions asked by Mr. Bailey, he was trying to confuse me," Maeras stated.

Referring to Maeras' testimony before the grand jury, De Villiers noted that Maeras had said that he was working at his service station during the second week of November when Brimberry called him, told him to go to the Busy Bee Bakery to receive another call, and then told him to burn all records connected with Stix.

Maeras testified on Tuesday that he was at a lawyer's office and received a

Home Show '83 opens on Friday

TONY BELLINGER

An event that proved so popular and well attended last year that a decision was made within a week to host it again this year — the Home Show — returns to the Wilson Park Ice Rink tomorrow for three days.

The free event gives Quad-Cityans a chance to view the latest in offerings for both the interior and exterior of their homes. Local businesses and organizations also will have booths at the Home Show. About 90 organizations have signed up for booths. A special supplement inside today's Press-Record gives details on the various displays.

Show hours are: Friday, 6 to 10 p.m.; Saturday, 1 to 10 p.m.; and Sunday, 1 to 5 p.m.

Two St. Louis Steamers soccer players, forward Tony Bellinger and goalie Slobodan Iljevski, will appear from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday.

The Press-Record will have a booth and will demonstrate typesetting equipment. In addition, reporters will be present for several periods each day to interview visitors for the newspaper's "Readers React" column which appears on the Editorial Page each issue.

The Granite City Police Department booth will show a videotape of damage from the May 1 tornado and will enlist volunteers for the Auxiliary Police. The Granite City Park District will distribute brochures on its summer activities and show a film about the park improvements in the last decade.

Home Show '83 is hosted by Granite City Trust and Savings Bank and Mel Embreich is this year's chairman. The show attracted an estimated 11,000 to 12,000 persons last year.

The rink is located at Benton Street and Oregon Avenue, on the north side of Wilson Park. There is no charge for admission or parking.

New trash collector, landfill eyed

The Granite City Council has tentatively awarded a $1.9 million three-year contract for the city's trash collection to Allied Disposal, Inc., St. Louis.

The city will continue to be served by Milam East Hauling Division, SCA Services of Illinois, until a contract expires with that firm June 30.

Allied Disposal was the low bidder among three other main bids submitted to the city last week. On Tuesday, the council received a letter from the Engineering Department recommending Allied Disposal be awarded all the city's pickup and landfill services, with the exception of trash pickup at Kirkpatrick Homes. Big "G" Disposal, Inc., Granite City, was the low bidder at $77.5¢ for the public housing collections.

Aldermen plan to meet with Allied Disposal representatives at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday to iron out the specific terms and services the company will provide to residents, to the street, humane and sanitation departments, and to the Wastewater Treatment Plant.

According to Mayor Paul Schuler, one of the biggest problems associated with the new company is the location of the Allied Disposal landfill. Laidlaw Waste Systems, in Belleville, The extra distance Granite City trucks must travel to reach the landfill will be one of the areas of discussion between the city and the disposal company.

As a possible alternative in its bid proposal, Allied Disposal is proposing to furnish large containers at the city garage where residents and the city could dump materials intended for the landfill. The firm would charge the city $150 for each container filled and hauled to Belleville.

Another alternative would be that residents dump materials at the Laidlaw Waste Systems of Belleville at the cost of $1 per cubic yard. The landfill is open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturdays.

Individual residential trash collections are expected to remain on a weekly basis at the starting cost of $3.00 per three-year contract allows for yearly increases for all collection services.

The company will be responsible for collections at 12,000 single-family and duplex residences, 750 commercial establishments, 11 schools and 200 units at Anchorage Homes.

Allied Disposal estimates a starting annual charge of $103,200 to accept sludge from the Wastewater Treatment Plant. The cost is expected to escalate to $113,776 by the third year of the contract. Until this year, SCA Services had been providing free landfill disposal of the sludge.

Mark Yust is general manager for Allied Disposal.

In other business, the Granite City aldermen voted 13 to 1 to amend the city's Alcoholic Liquor Dealers Ordinance to expand the operating hours of large restaurants that purchase a special $150 license.

Third Ward Alderman Paul Fisk voted against the amendment that was approved after the council suspended its rules to pass the law on first reading.

The amendment was brought before the council following a request by Charlie's Restaurant and Cocktail Lounge to lengthen its business hours. The law will allow restaurants with annual gross receipts of $750,000 and a minimum seating capacity of 150 to stay open until 4 a.m.

New Chamber head sees bright future

The new Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce executive vice president, James R. Pennekamp, began his new duties last Monday by touring local business and industries and expressing the theme that things here are not as gloomy as they seem, since the Quad-City area has everything needed to rebound from the recession.

Pennekamp took over the formal title of Chamber vice president after the resignation of Alan G. Richardson last month. Richardson moved to Beardstown to assist in economic development. Like his predecessor, Pennekamp is stressing economic development as the main thrust of his new job.

Small businesses, employing 20 or less persons, are the "growth industries" of tomorrow and will be the target of the Chamber's efforts to woo new business here. The large corporations will rebound slowly on their own, Pennekamp contends.

"We have the best industrial park in the world here, bar none. I can honestly say that," Pennekamp stated, referring to Illinois Power's Northgate Industrial Park, now housing only Precast Metals, but designed and prepared to accept many other new businesses.

Pennekamp comes to the area after leaving his post as assistant director of the Economic Development Corporation of Jefferson County, Mo. Prior to holding that position, he was a deputy juvenile officer for the Jefferson County Juvenile Court. He admits to having "an outsider's view," having looked at this area as a Missourian only as "the East Side" and admitting that every day he finds great surprises in the strength, beauty and offerings of the Quad-City area, attributes of which too few Missourians are aware.

He points to his past achievements in management, sales, finance, public relations, research and grantsmanship as background for his new job here.

In his last job, the Economic Development Corporation, the Industrial Development Authority and the Port Authority. He successfully co-authored a $260,000 Economic Development Administration Public Works Grant instrumental in the location of a $40 million manufacturing facility in Jefferson County.

He sought out industries and businesses to locate or expand their operations in Jefferson County. He assisted business clients in financing their operations through industrial revenue bonds and the Small Business Administration Loan Program.

His experience in marketing includes his preparation of promotional materials, such as brochures, fact books, audio-visual presentations and economic development exhibits.

Prior to his departure, Richardson was involved in preparing several brochures on the area for the Chamber.

Pennekamp is a member of the Missouri Industrial Development Council and the St. Louis Area Economic Developers Association.

He holds a 1972 bachelor's degree in sociology from Valparaiso University.

Probe of Nameoki nearing the end?

The Madison County grand jury's investigation into Nameoki Township activities is nearing completion as approximately 12 persons have been subpoenaed to appear today, the Press-Record has learned.

Among those said to have been subpoenaed (grand jury sessions are secret and official sources refuse to discuss who has been subpoenaed) are Nameoki Township Highway Commissioner Frank Mehelic, Supervisor Harry Briggs and Pontoon Beach Village Board President Paul Bennett, a former mechanic for the township's highway department and presently maintenance supervisor for the Madison County sanitary sewers for special service area No. 1, township sources say.

Others scheduled to appear include township dogcatchers, bookkeepers, van drivers and other township employees, it is believed.

Illinois Department of Criminal Investigation (DCI) agents delivered the subpoenas to the witnesses earlier this week. The DCI had declined comment.

The grand jury is believed to be looking into alleged misuses of township gasoline and materials. There were indications early into the investigation that it may be broadening into the county's special sewer appropriations, but the focus is believed to have shifted back to the township activities.

Township employees have alleged that Mehelic has told them in the past to use township gasoline and then claim they used more than they actually did. Mehelic has told the Press-Record that may have been true, but he only told them to "round off" the amount of gasoline taken to make bookkeeping easier.

Various purchasing procedures by the highway department over the past several years also are believed to be under study by the grand jury and large numbers of documents have been subpoenaed, sources say.

Protest rent hikes

By VALERIE EVENEDEN
of the Press-Record

An appeal to the Venice City Council for help was made by a delegation of public housing residents, whose rents have been arbitrarily increased, some substantially and without a written 30-day notice, it was contended.

Several persons spoke at Tuesday night's council session, some of whom are members of a tenant's council. "We need some legal advice about this new rent structure in the housing projects," Willie Payne, a spokesman for the tenants, told the aldermen. "We really do need some help."

Payne, a retiree, was introduced by Mayor Tyrone Echols.

A woman resident of Venice Homes said her rent has been increased by $44 a month. She was not officially notified of the raise, she said, and called the authorities to complain when she found out it had been increased. "The next day I got a (official) notice," she commented.

Spray vehicles with fire device

Three men in their mid-20's are believed to be responsible for spraying the contents of a fire extinguisher on the exterior and interior of a Jeep and three other vehicles parked near 21st Street and Grand Avenue, last week.

The men allegedly stole the extinguisher from a hallway at 2103 Grand Ave. and initially tried to sell the device at the nearby Longbranch tavern.

Someone took the extinguisher from them and replaced it in its original spot, reports said. Soon afterward, however, the same trio was seen walking into the building and the extinguisher again was missing.

Police were called when someone reported seeing what appeared to be a "white fog" in front of the building and found the Jeep with its interior full of white powder.

The three men were last seen walking on State toward 21st Street, carrying the extinguisher, which later was found discarded on the steps of a dwelling in the 2000 block of State.

KNIFINGS ON GRAND AVE. INVESTIGATED

Thomas Richardson, 19, of 2218 Grand Ave., suffered a cut on the head and a puncture wound on the left leg; Bob Johnson, Wood River, sustained puncture wounds to the back and the left leg; and Billy J. Cagle, 20, of 2218 Grand Ave., received cuts on the right hand and wrist in apparent knifing incidents last week in the 2200 block of Grand.

Richardson and Johnson were given emergency treatment at St. Elizabeth Medical Center. Cagle, Richardson and two other Grand Avenue residents were released from police custody later Friday.

REPORTS BURGLARY

Burglars pried open a rear door at the mobile home of Don Harts, 2 Parktowne West, ransacked the interior and stole a 35mm camera, a silver bar, silver coins, a cowboy hat, Navy uniform pins and an instant camera, he reported last week.

IP steps up energy conservation plans

Illinois Power Company has reported plans for an extensive energy conservation program for 1983. Details of 15 new and ongoing programs in the company's Conservation Action Plan for 1983 were included in a report filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The report traces the success of company conservation programs which were begun in the late 1950's and expanded significantly in 1974. Success of the programs is reflected in a 22.5 percent decline in the average residential customer's use of natural gas between 1973, the report concluded.

"Today, Illinois Power Company delivers a full range of energy conservation services with a thrust toward providing the tools necessary for the consumer to make a rational decision regarding energy conservation practices," the report said.

Ongoing programs covered in the report include the National Energy Watch-Residential Conservation Services program of home and business energy audits.

New programs proposed to help low income customers include a weatherization program for homes without ceiling insulation, a water heater insulation blanket program and a program to distribute electrical outlet draft stopper kits.

"Although Illinois Power's existing programs have emphasized the energy-saving potential of ceiling insulation and insulation blankets for water heaters over a period of several years, there are still many homes that have no ceiling insulation, and even more water heaters remain untrapped," the report said.

For customers who cannot afford appropriate energy conservation measures, the utility proposed assistance by the state of Illinois. The state should provide funds to guarantee loans to energy consumers lacking the financial ability or resources to obtain traditional financing, or make direct grants to needy individuals to be used for conservation measures "with the intent that money would not be repaid," the report said.

Two face charges

For allegedly throwing bottles and ash trays last week at Ken's Lounge, 1539 Twentieth St., Rose J. Murphy, 32, of 2028 Madison Ave. was charged with disorderly conduct. She was freed on $52 bail. The complainant, Connie S. Cox, 35, of 704 Ashland Ave., Mitchell, an employee of the lounge, was booked on a 1981 warrant alleging failure to yield the right-of-way during a left turn. She posted $102.

Garage break-in

After removing the screws from a lock hasp on the garage door of the home of Dorothy Milton, 143 Briarwood Drive, a burglar stole a red lawnmower and a 20-inch yellow and black boy's bicycle.

Jobless area firms aided in defense sales

Small businesses in areas of high unemployment now have a special incentive for seeking procurement contracts from the Defense Construction Supply Center (DSCS) in Columbus, Ohio, or from any other procurement center within the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA), headquartered in Alexandria, Va.

As a result of the Maybank Amendment (Public Law 97-377), businesses in labor surplus areas (LSA) can qualify for a procurement contract if their price falls within 22 percent of the otherwise lowest bid received from a concern not performing in an LSA.

The arrangement is effective through September 1983. "Labor surplus areas" are geographically identified by the U.S. Department of Labor by unemployment rates more than 20 percent above the national average.

The dollar difference between low bids, where performance will not be in an LSA, will be financed by a special $4 billion Congressional allocation.

DSCS - which is one of six DLA supply centers - buys construction equipment and vehicular repair parts for the nation's military services. Purchases this year are expected to exceed $848.5 million.

Items include plywood, lumber, pipe, hose, pumps, winches, conveyors, engines, transmissions, tractors and other repair parts used by U.S. armed forces around the world.

Urge second lock

More than 100 area leaders asked the bi-state region's Congressional delegation Thursday to support policies to maintain U.S. technological leadership.

The group was in Washington for the Regional Commerce and Growth Association, in a briefing book handed to members of Congress and their staffs, the group touched on 16 issues affecting the economy of this region.

Ted C. Wettlerau, chairman of RCGA and chairman and chief executive officer, Wettlerau, Inc., presided at a luncheon. Earlier, the group had been briefed at the Department of Transportation.

During the afternoon, the 100 attended a briefing by the Department of Defense. Citing its plan to encourage high technology operations in the St. Louis area, the RCGA called for Congressional support in four areas to "maintain this country's industrial advantage and rate of innovation." The four are education, research, "free trade within the limits of equity" and legislation conducive to formation of risk capital.

Among other positions outlined were support for the Jobs Training Partnership Act, proposed River from the Gateway Arch, a second lock at the Lock and Dam 26 replacement project, a federal product liability law, and amendment of the Clean Air Act and Clean Water Act.

The group also called for action by the U.S. Customs Service office in St. Louis, continued federal support for mass transit, implementation of a recent harbor study for the Port of Metropolitan St. Louis, and creation of a 10-state Missouri river Basin compact to help manage water resources.

Competition for study overseas

The Institute of International Education has announced its 1984-85 competition for grants to graduate study or research abroad, according to Floyd Coleman, Associate dean in the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville Office of Graduate Studies and Research, he said the competition is open to those interested in studying academic or professional training fields in creative and performing arts.

Each applicant must be a U.S. citizen with a bachelor's degree, and must be proficient in the language of the host country. Candidates may not hold a Ph.D. at the time of application.

In addition, those in the creative and performing arts area are not required to have a bachelor's degree, but must have four years of professional study or equivalent experience.

Selection is based on the academic and professional record of the applicant, the proposed study plan, language preparation and personal qualifications. Preference will be given to candidates who have not had prior opportunity for extended study or residence abroad.

The purpose of the grant is to increase mutual understanding between people of the United States and other countries through exchange of persons, knowledge and skills.

Applications and information may be obtained from Coleman on the second floor of the Rensselaer building, 882-3011. Deadline for application is Oct. 14.

Steal food items at Dunbar School

Large quantities of hamburger, bacon, cheese, butter, potato chips and Graham crackers were stolen in a burglary discovered early this week at Johnson-Dunbar School Social Center in Madison.

Entry was gained by cutting a screen on a kitchen window.

The thieves apparently loaded the food into a 30-gallon plastic waste can in order to carry the items from the building.

THREATENS VENICE WOMAN WITH PISTOL

Georgia Wallace, 520 Third St., Venice, was seated in a car along with a friend in Lee Park, Venice, when a vehicle occupied by three people pulled alongside and the woman driver started talking to her, she told police.

The woman alighted from her auto and began fighting with Miss Wallace, hitting her with a stick, the latter reported. Her assailant then took a pistol from the trunk of the car, waved it around and threatened her with the weapon, Miss Wallace said.

A description of the vehicle and woman was given police and the auto was stalled in Brooklyn. No weapon was found in the car, police noted. Miss Wallace was advised to seek further action through the state's attorney's office.

CURFEW VIOLATION

After he allegedly ran from officers in the 4500 block of Kirkpatrick Homes and was caught a block away early this week, Mark W. Jackson, 17, of 2909 Buxton Ave., was arrested and charged with violating the curfew statute.

INNOCENT PLEA

In response to a warrant, James L. Keel, 19, of 38 Parktowne West, last week reported to Granite City police headquarters and pleaded innocent to a charge of theft in a court appearance there. He was released on his own recognizance.

Brimberry

call from his son-in-law, Steven Wilson, telling him that Brimberry had called the station and needed to talk to Maeras immediately. Maeras testified that "rushed" to the station to await Brimberry's call.

Telling De Villiers the circumstances surrounding the earlier discrepancy, Maeras said, "I was trying my best, I could have been a little confused there."

As Maeras looked over signatures and notations in his records, De Villiers asked him about names on check stubs and canceled checks. He also asked Maeras several times to identify the signatures and the pens used to sign those names and to make those notations.

One notation indicated that a check was written "for Janet's rings," and Maeras testified that it referred to Janice Brimberry. "That refers to Janice Brimberry," De Villiers asked. "Her name is Janice. Why did you write 'Janet'?"

Brimberry and Defense Attorney Lawrence Fleming laughed as Maeras answered, "I often call her that." De Villiers' reference to Maeras' daughter Janet was then ruled inadmissible.

Miller told the jury that he became involved in the notice when he noticed Brimberry and Maeras splitting great amounts of cash. When Brimberry explained that the money had been made in the stock market, Miller agreed to forge stocks in his name with Brimberry's money to back the accounts.

Miller testified that the $250,000 to $300,000 that he received from the scheme was spent on "gambling debts, expensive cars, and trips." By the fall of 1981, Miller still had some $30,000, but he gave that money to lawyers or used it for living expenses.

When Brimberry told him to burn records for his Slix accounts, Miller said, he burned them in his fireplace.

Miller testified that after Brimberry threatened his family in the fall of 1981, Miller continued to receive money from the illegal accounts "for two reasons — because of the threats and because of gambling debts."

Miller said that Brimberry had told him to try to make a deal with authorities when news of the swindle hit the newspaper in November, 1981.

"He (Brimberry) said that I should try to make a deal with the government before Jerry Maeras did," Miller said. "He said that I should try to make sure that Maeras had burned his records," he added.

Brimberry also instructed Miller "not to mention Duane Skinner's name" during the investigation, Miller testified.

"He said, 'We both stand a good chance of going to jail and we need a friend on the outside,'" Miller said of Brimberry.

Cross-examination of Miller began today. The trial is expected to last only until the end of the week.

In his opening statement to the jury on Monday De Villiers vowed to prove that Brimberry is innocent of "sour grapes charges of obstructing justice."

during the investigation of the embezzlement of nearly $16 million from the now-defunct Slix and Company.

The jury of seven men and five women must determine whether Brimberry is guilty of instructing Miller and Maeras to burn records of their accounts at Slix and Co. after he had made a deal with the government to plead guilty to one income tax evasion charge.

According to De Villiers, federal authorities would never have uncovered the scheme without Brimberry's assistance, and the government is now "reneging" on their deal with Brimberry, a former Granite Cityan. "Sometimes it can be mindboggling what can happen to a citizen when he agrees to cooperate with the government," De Villiers stated.

In testimony Tuesday, Maeras disclosed his role in the scheme as Brimberry's "errand boy," and told the jury that Brimberry had instructed him to burn the records from the Jerry S. Maeras and Maeras Enterprises accounts at Slix and Co. Maeras explained how Brimberry had instructed him to burn the records in Madison in November, 1981, and told him to go to the Busy Bee Bakery to receive instructions at their private telephone.

Maeras testified, "Tom said, 'You have to do what I say. You have to burn the records from Slix. If you don't do what I say, there will be a blood trail.' Those were his exact words," Maeras said.

When asked why Brimberry wanted him to use the telephone, Maeras replied, "I don't know sir."

Maeras did not burn the "four complete file cabinets" of records, he told the jury, because he had already received a subpoena for the records. "I didn't think that was right," he said. "I remembered that I had this subpoena. I just didn't want to do that, sir," he added.

Maeras described Brimberry as "a big gambler" who took Maeras' family and many other families on trips to Hawaii, Monte Carlo, the Bahamas, Las Vegas, and Europe. On all of these trips, Maeras testified, Brimberry paid for all expenses. This, he testified, was the reason that he became and remained involved in the embezzlement scheme with Brimberry.

"He would have you travel with him, pick up all of the expenses, give you money," Kane said. "Is that why you went along with him?"

"Yes, yes," Maeras quietly responded.

Admitting to serving as Brimberry's "errand boy," Maeras also testified that Brimberry instructed him to keep up to $150,000 cash in the trunk of his car "just in case he needed cash right away." When Maeras questioned Brimberry about having to keep this cash in his car, Brimberry reportedly told Maeras "Don't worry about it. It's not your money. Just don't worry about it."

Maeras stated that on different occasions, he put approximately $7,500 in a paper bag and gave it to Duane Skinner, Inc. (Skinner, who is to be sentenced on May 27 for his role in the scheme, was the bookkeeper and eventually the president of the excavating firm).

Maeras explained that Brimberry called him in November, 1981, to warn him of a federal investigation into the Slix scheme, and that Brimberry had instructed him "not to mention his name" to the authorities. However, Maeras testified that he did mention Brimberry's name during the interview. "They were asking direct questions, sir," Maeras told Kane.

He also admitted to lying during the interview with the agents to cover himself. "I was scared," Maeras said. "I just wanted to protect myself."

Maeras is testifying as a government witness as the result of a plea bargain in which he pleaded guilty to one count of mail fraud, one count of securities fraud, and one count of conspiring to defraud the IRS.

In earlier testimony on Tuesday, IRS Special Agent James Weirheim chronologized the extensive investigation into the scheme, which included several interviews with Brimberry and a 2 a.m. visit to the Slix office on one occasion. It was during this visit that Brimberry warned Weirheim to secure the records of the illicit accounts because "Mr. Massa was in Las Vegas and would be returning soon and would 'burn the records' if he discovered the investigation."

Weirheim then secured a search warrant and took "a truckload" of Slix records from the firm on Nov. 4, 1981.

During one of these interviews, Weirheim explained he questioned Brimberry about the "pecking order" at Slix and Co. on one to one to 10 scale (with one being the highest) and Brimberry had responded, "I'm a one, Massa's a one, and Maeras is a two."

Defense Attorney Lawrence Fleming admonished Weirheim, saying that authorities would never have uncovered the scheme if Brimberry had come forward, and that the investigation was an attempt to "naïf" Brimberry.

"Isn't it true that the government was dissatisfied with the agreement?" Fleming asked.

"Yes, sir," was Weirheim's response.

"Wasn't your intention to find a way to get out of that agreement?" Fleming asked.

"It wasn't my intention to come up with a charge against Mr. Brimberry," the agent answered.

After Fleming pointed out that Brimberry showed agents where all the records were located, helped them secure a search warrant, listed names of those involved in the fraud and mail fraud, and helped them with the FBI throughout the investigation, Assistant U.S. Attorney Clifford Proff said, "Who told him to maintain contact with the FBI?" and Weirheim responded, "We did."

New cable contender in Venice

By VALERIE EVENDEN

Compared to recent presentations by cable television representatives before the Venice City Council, a relatively straight-forward, no frills, proposal was heard by the aldermen at Tuesday night's city council session.

Harrison Flora, vice president of operations for TeleNational Communications of Pensacola Fla., addressed the council concerning his company, which currently is installing cable TV in Centerville and Alorton.

Flora's firm now operates cable TV systems throughout the U.S., he said, having started in 1974 by installing cable TV at military bases, including Homestead Air Force Base in Florida and U.S. Army facilities at Fort Hood, Tex., and Fort Riley, Kans., among others.

TeleNational branched out into the civilian market in 1978-79 and began a commitment to provide cable TV to smaller communities where it became apparent that large TV companies were not offering cable to small towns.

Instead, they were concentrating on the major metropolitan areas, such as St. Louis, "Flora stated.

Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols prefaced the TeleNational presentation by noting, "We didn't hear from Mr. Dugans about his performance here but by May 6... so he's in trouble."

"Mr. Bucy is not in trouble with us, as Mr. Dugans is. Bucy left us after stating that he could post a performance bond within 30 days, in accordance with the franchise agreement, if we gave him the contract."

The mayor was referring to proposals made by Dugans of Tallahassee, Fla., franchising manager for CATV Systems, and Greg Bucy of Oklahoma City, president of Cybernetic Communications Inc. Both men spoke before the council at its May 3 meeting.

At an April session, the two men sought the franchise in a partnership structure but the partnership had dissolved prior to the May 3 meeting due to financial problems between the pair.

The mayor flashed an ironic smile when referring to Dugans, whose flamboyant style and an apparent "set-up" in his dealings with the council had provoked and, to some degree, amused Mayor Echols.

At the time that Dugans' remarks were not being taken too seriously, Dugans is the same man who Aug. 24 received a franchise for cable TV from the city, but the agreement failed to produce a cable TV system and repeated attempts by Mayor Echols to reach the CATV representative were unsuccessful.

Finally, a spokesman for the firm at the New York headquarters alleged Dugans was no longer associated with the firm and that none of his dealings with Venice were known.

The situation resulted in months of delay which annoyed the mayor and council members after being promised a cable TV system by this spring. Dugans was given a repeat hearing in April, however, when it was learned he retained the title of CATV franchising manager.

TeleNational is actively pursuing cable TV franchising. Flora told the council, he reported hearing in recent months of several communities whose promised cable TV systems have not materialized due to lack of funding or a lack of technical expertise, among other problems.

In response to questions from the mayor and aldermen, Flora said all the necessary agreements with utility firms and federal approval are completed in Centerville and Alorton and construction there will start in June, or no later than July. He submitted a written proposal to the council, which he quoted as "almost identical to the system being installed in the two area communities."

Children's cost for TeleNational is comparable to proposals offered by CATV and Cybernetic Communications of two movie channels, going up to $28.50 a month for a full range of services and two premium movie channels.

A subscriber fee of $19.50 per month would be charged for all basic and expanded channels, such as channels originating in Atlanta and Chicago, and those devoted to sports, cable news, children's programming, the arts, religion and family-oriented and a black entertainment network, plus one of two movie channels, Flora said. Each extra outlet (set) in a home would cost $4.

Installation of cable TV would be made available without cost to homeowners as a special introductory offer during the initial two to three weeks, as a means of encouraging subscribers to join, he said.

A head-in lower definitely will be placed in Venice, but a central business office probably would be located in Centerville, the largest community with a TeleNational system in the general area, Flora stated.

Some Venice residents would be hired during the construction phase, an offer made by the two previous contractors and an important issue to the aldermen.

A technician-installer also would be situated in Venice and any necessary repairs could be made within a 24-hour period, Flora said. The system, however, requires little maintenance, as it is a solid state, nearly trouble-free system, he contended.

Bill collections may be arranged through a local merchant, bank or similar concern, rather than establishing a local office for this purpose, he said. Location of a business office or tower in Venice was part of the original franchise ordinance.

Flora also indicated the company is interested in obtaining a franchise with Brimberry, which also was part of the initial agreement with CATV.

Free outlets for schools and public buildings would be made available and the city would receive three percent of the gross revenue. It was explained that the city can apply to federal authorities for a waiver in order to receive an additional two percent of the gross revenue, which may be granted if Venice can show that three percent is insufficient to operate in accordance with the ordinance.

Flora said that construction and installation of cable TV service in Venice would take no longer than six to eight months. "You would have cable TV by early this fall," he promised.

2 named to faculty of GC college

Donald Davinroy and Judy Sparks will serve as educational specialists on the faculty of Granite City College, the new two-year college center that will open in August at the Granite City High School North building.

Dr. Frank Gornick, provost, said today Davinroy will be in charge of microcomputers and data processing, and Mrs. Sparks will direct secretarial science and word processing. They also will handle recruiting and advisory duties.

Three additional educational specialists remain to be named, the provost said. Jim O'Dell will be varsity wrestling coach and Larry Petri will be varsity soccer coach.

Enrollment for the fall 1983 semester of GCC is going well, Dr. Gornick said; it is proceeding on weekdays at the present day center, Washington School, and night center, GCC South.

After North High classes have ended May 27, College District 522 will begin readying the North facilities for the start of Granite City Center classes Aug. 22.

Washington will not be utilized in 1983-84 but some college classes will continue at South as well as around the clock activities at North.

Upgrade high school standards

Many fine students will be among the 150,000 graduating from Illinois high schools this spring. But under state statutes none will have had to demonstrate, formally, much more than familiarity with the state and federal constitutions.

That is the contention of legislators who are hoping to force schools to beef up their instruction, particularly in the basics of reading, writing and arithmetic, with a bit of computer science thrown in.

The general approach could be paraphrased as, "It's a tough world out there. Let's lay out the homework and not be so easy going. When we're too easy, we lull students into a false feeling of competence as they enter highly competitive situations."

Fairly or unfairly, there is a widespread belief that America and its economy are in trouble, and that poor education has helped the nation lose its status as the leader of all industrial nations.

The 118-member Illinois House of Representatives. It voted 110-6 May 12 to add a number of mandatory courses, starting with the high school class of 1988.

To graduate, a student would have to take at least three years of English or related language arts, two years each of mathematics, science and history or civics, and one year of art, music or a foreign language. Under existing law, such courses must be offered but not necessarily taken.

The School Code now requires driver safety, physical education and consumer education. State officials have just fought off efforts to ease the driver training and gymnasium requirements despite most school systems' severe financial crunch.

Since most districts require a comprehensive core of classes, the Illinois Association of School Boards does not see much merit in the legislation. But 34 states limit diplomas to those who can comprehend the written word, detect faulty grammar and solve algebraic equations, and even the proposed "stringent" law would not add Illinois to that list.

College entrance examinations show Illinois high school students are above the national average, and the percentage going on to college also tops the average. But the legislators say the national average itself may be pitifully low.

We are inclined to agree that the schools should tighten things up a bit. But we wonder what kind of grade should be given the General Assembly, which cannot seem to get its budgeting mathematics in order, and is piling a half-billion dollars from schools' early-1980s annual funding level.

Common Cause also has argued that PACs buy access to the bureaucracy with contributions. That means PACs give money to legislators who then act as go-betweens between special interests and the bureaucracy.

The access-buying argument is a bit more convincing than the vote-buying one. So, if Common Cause wants to reduce or eliminate special interest groups' access, why is it proposing changes for gubernatorial elections alone?

Spending tax dollars to partly finance governor campaigns will not begin to address the issue. First, gubernatorial candidates could still receive PAC money. Second, legislators, who collectively have much more access than the governor's office, are ignored by the proposal.

The length of time and amount of money spent on campaigns should be restricted. But the Common Cause plan is the wrong approach.

If the group is serious about reform, it should address campaign problems that can be identified, measured and solved.

Ill. election law proposal shallow

Belleville News-Democrat—A citizens' advocate group has requested state election law changes based on a specious argument. While reform of election campaigns is needed, the Illinois Common Cause proposal is shallow and would be ineffective.

The proposal is to spend public funds to partly finance gubernatorial races. It is well-intentioned but practically useless, for several reasons.

The group has implied that contributions from political action committees (PACs) buy votes from state and federal legislators.

Their own data would lead to another equally plausible conclusion—That PACs contribute to candidates whose voting records support particular policies. Neither case can be proved, and there is no way to measure the effect PAC money has on elected officials' behavior.

Even if the law were passed, no one could know whether or not it worked. In fact, no one knows exactly what it is supposed to do. What does it mean to say it will shrink the importance of donations from special interests, if the importance of such donations is unknown?

Scott commander thanks the area

(Guest editorial by Col. John T. Massingale Jr., Commander, 375th Aeromedical Airlift Wing, Scott Air Force Base.)

May 23 is Armed Forces Day. It was established to traditionally honor us in the military services. On behalf of the men and women of Scott Air Force Base, I would like to take this Armed Forces Day and thank you — our neighbors and friends — for your support and appreciation.

Year after year, you have made us feel we are a part of the community and not just an extension of it. You have honored us publicly and privately, collectively and individually. You did not wait for this special day to make us feel that we are a part of your community.

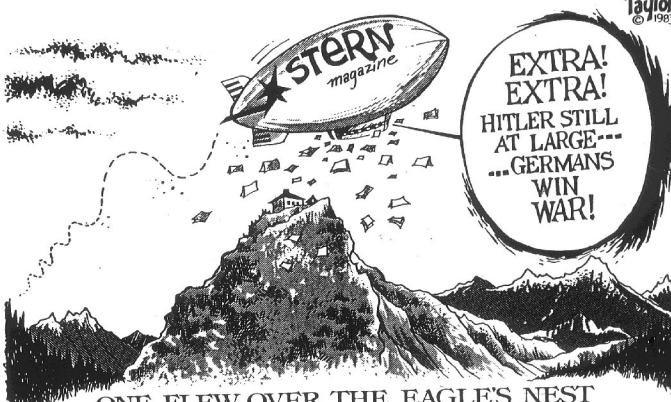

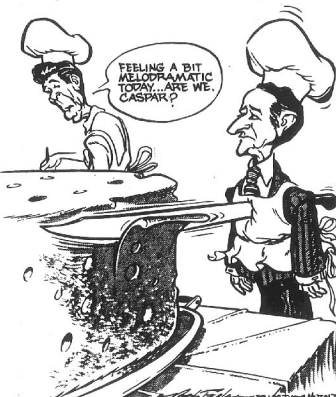

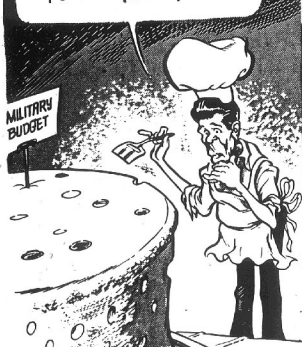

In 1950, President Truman declared the third Saturday in May to be Armed Forces Day — a day to "display the flag and express recognition of the skill, gallantry and uncompromising devotion to duty characteristic of the armed forces in carrying out their mission." I have heard your expressions of gratitude and seen your waving flags on more days than just this special one. I have sensed your renewed spirit and pride in community and country and an increasing esteem for the military.

You can be especially proud of the role you have played in strengthening our dedication of service to country. While the military is an arm of the executive branch of government, it is also an arm of the American people. Your attitudes and words weigh heavily on our minds because we are a part of you. We are your neighbors. Our children attend school with your children. We worship God along side of you. We have interests in the economic stability of the community just as you do. We share the same dreams and make it a true community happening.

So on this day, set aside to honor us, I return the salute to you on behalf of the men and women of Scott Air Force Base for your continuous support and appreciation. I also extend my personal invitation for you to join us on June 11 for our annual Open House and make it a true community happening.

Recently, Adolf Hitler's alleged diaries, which were found to be forgeries by handwriting experts, Press-Record readers were asked whether they thought the diaries were forged when the magazine began publishing the diaries.

Lisa Krieschok, Madison
I thought they were faked because it seems logical they would have found them before now.

Helen Reed, Madison
People are just trying to stir up a little trouble by releasing them.

Rick McClure, Granite City
Absolutely, they were faked. They were found too long after the fact like all the other frauds. I didn't believe all that garbage about the airplane.

Charles Schaffer, Granite City
I thought they made too much of a big deal about them. If they enjoy to read it, whether it be fact or fiction, then they should read it. I don't really care too much about the diaries.

Fears new sanitary district legislation

To the Editor:

I have just learned that legislation (House Bill 1724) has been introduced in the Illinois General Assembly that would substantially change the present laws governing the operation of the Metro-East Sanitary District and would, if enacted, permit a public agency that levies taxes against citizens' residential and business property in portions of St. Clair and Madison Counties to be operated in a closed, virtually-private fashion without any recourse for public protest or objections and without any protection for citizens and taxpayers against unwarranted increases in the taxes levied against their properties.

The legislation also is designed to allow the district to be operated by political hacks and to only serve their vested interests and those of the chairmen of the two county boards.

House Bill 1724 amends the Metro-East Sanitary District Act and provides that terms of commissioners shall be at the pleasure of the county board chairman who appointed them and sets a salary for the commissioners as the same as county board members. It also empowers the district to sell, lease or convey any real or personal property, rights-of-way and privileges of the district.

The bill authorizes a member of the board to serve as executive director and abolishes the requirement that the executive director must be a registered engineer. It authorizes the district to issue revenue bonds without a referendum and would be effective immediately.

House Bill 1724, if enacted into law, would scuttle the real intent of the original legislation creating the sanitary district and was conceived, I am told, to create a job for the president of the sanitary district, as well as to build political machines for the two county board chairmen.

When State Rep. Celeste Stiehl introduced the bill to abolish the old levees district and create a new sanitary district, which was subsequently approved by the voters in a referendum, it was because of the political corruption and misuse of public funds that had become a scandal. If House Bill 1724 becomes law, we will be right back to the old levee board.

The voters approved the new sanitary district with the clear understanding and belief that the rules then approved would govern it. If changes are made, then it seems only right that the voters should have to approve them, and that a mere bill approved by the state legislature would not be effective immediately. House Bill 1724 clearly violates the mandate of the voters in the 1974 election.

If a change is needed in the operation of the sanitary district, then it should revert back to election of the commissioners, in my opinion, and the intent of the 1974 legislation creating the Metro-East Sanitary District was good (requiring both political parties to be represented on the appointed board), the carrying out of that intent has not been good.

In St. Clair County, which, by law, is required to have one Democrat and one Republican on the Metro-East Sanitary District Board, the Republican Party has been shortchanged. The St. Clair County Republican on the sanitary district is from East St. Louis, where 98 percent of the residents are Democrats, and he is to all intents and purposes a Democrat. He is employed by Labor Local 100 which is controlled by Democrats and he does whatever Shavin and Costello tell him to do.

House Bill 1724 should be exposed to the public and urge you to use your media to do so. The citizens cannot afford to have their sanitary district, which is vital to their safety and health, operated in a 1950 levee board manner. The sanitary district now is being operated illegally without a qualified executive director as required by law and we must not permit this same person to continue to operate the district as he sees fit and be backed by a state law.

Opposes importing steel slabs from England

To the Editor:

After a flurry of headlines five weeks ago many people may have forgotten the announcement by U.S. Steel of their intention to import foreign steel slabs to their Fairless, Pa., steelworks. As part of the U.S. Steel scheme, slabs from Great Britain will be imported and hot metal production at the Fairless works will be shut down — thereby eliminating 3,000 American jobs.

Imagine the effect on Granite City if National Steel similarly shut down its steel producing facilities and brought in outside slabs. Or, looking at it from a different angle, imagine the reaction of steelworkers if Granite City Steel sent work finishing and processing slabs outside the mill, thus denying steelworkers their jobs.

U.S. Steel is showing no loyalty to its employees. The ink was hardly dry on a concession-filled contract between the Steelworkers Union and the companies when the job-cutting plan was announced. A cruel hoax was thereby revealed to steelworkers and steel communities, such as Granite City, which are so heavily dependent upon steel production for their well-being.

The steel companies insisted that concessions would save jobs. They would invest in existing facilities they said. Well, instead, the companies will enjoy the billions of dollars in savings given to them by steelworkers and continue to eliminate jobs.

U.S. Steel recently imported Korean steel for the construction of a Seattle skyscraper — steel which could have been produced in this country by the same American steelworkers who gave up huge wage and benefit concessions. And, don't forget the $6.2 billion that U.S. Steel came up with to buy an oil company — money that it supposedly didn't have to invest in steel.

In the 1960's American steelmakers produced about one-half of the world's steel. Today, the U.S. produces 16 percent of world steel output and exports less than one-tenth of the amount exported by Japan. Three hundred thousand jobs have been eliminated. Entire blue-collar communities have been wiped out.

Steelworkers are not to blame for this tragedy. They are victims and spectators of destructive company policies and unsound business decisions.

In 1962, President Kennedy criticized a steel price increase by U.S. Steel as "irresponsible defiance of public interest." That same callousness towards the public interest and steelworkers continues today.

Steelworkers have made a considerable investment of their lives in the steel mills of this country, including at Granite City Steel. The contact concessions of wages and benefits are but one part of that investment. The recent actions by many steel companies can only be viewed by steelworkers as a gigantic double-cross.

"The British Are Coming, The British Are Coming"

AND AMERICA'S STEEL INDEPENDENCE IS GOING

A Message Especially for Stockholders Of American Steel Companies

As Independence Day approaches this year, Paul Revere's warning takes on a new and dangerous meaning.

If a deal struck by the U.S. Steel Corporation and the government-owned British Steel Corporation goes through as planned, it could be the beginning of the end for America's steel independence. As the union representing America's steelworkers, we find that prospect extremely disturbing, and for reasons that go beyond our self-interest. It is, for example, contrary to the best interests of stockholders of other American steel companies.

Here's what is involved.

U.S. Steel wants to quit making steel at its Fairless Hills plant in Pennsylvania, but continue to operate the Fairless finishing facilities. It wants to accomplish this by importing millions of tons of semi-finished steel "slabs" from the British Steel Corporation's Ravenscraig plant in Scotland.

U.S. Steel says it would be cheaper to do this than to modernize the steel-making facilities at Fairless. To make the deal more palatable for Americans, the British say they will create a so-called "private corporation" just to operate Ravenscraig.

That's supposed to take the sting out of U.S. Steel's importation of subsidized foreign steel. Of course it ignores the fact that the Ravenscraig technology is a direct result of subsidized investment. The same is true for the entire money-losing British steel operation.

The fact is that Ravenscraig would not exist but for this subsidy.

It is indeed ironic that in the past, even U.S. Steel has charged that government subsidies saved British steel from bankruptcy and allowed it to install new technology while encountering huge operating losses.

The logical, fair and reasonable thing for U.S. Steel to do is to forget the British deal and modernize Fairless. Earlier this year, our union negotiated a new contract that will save the steel industry some $3 billion. As the largest steel company, U.S. Steel will realize the largest share of those savings. Our one condition was that these savings be plowed back into existing facilities.

Certainly this is consistent with the industry's long-stated objective of modernizing its facilities to sharpen its competitive edge.

If U.S. Steel is able to consummate this unlikely match, it can make other deals with the Europeans, Brazilians, Nigerians, Taiwanese and others who have the capacity to flood the American market with subsidized steel. Then, one by one, other American steel companies will be forced to follow suit to remain competitive. If they don't, they'll be priced out of the marketplace.

The losers in such a scenario would be the thousands of new unemployed American steelworkers, the stockholders of other, smaller American steel companies, and the American people, who would find themselves dependent on foreign producers for our steel needs, including steel for defense purposes.

Smaller steel companies are especially vulnerable. One half or more of their investment in steel properties is tied up in iron and coal mines, and the ovens and furnaces that produce steel. If these facilities are made useless by a national shift to imported raw steel, all of that will have to be written off. The effect on balance sheets and the market value of investments is obvious.

The United Steelworkers of America is determined that this will not happen. We have committed the resources of our union to this total effort. We will employ every legal means at our disposal to block this dangerous precedent.

★ Within recent days, we have engaged counsel to file on our behalf a petition charging that the proposed transaction is illegal under U.S. trade laws.

★ We will press fully our rights under existing collective bargaining agreements with U.S. Steel, as well as our rights under the National Labor Relations Act.

★ We will call for a Congressional investigation of the entire proposed U.S. Steel-British Steel arrangement—including the issuance of subpoenas to examine all documents and notes exchanged by the parties and the relative costs of producing steel at Ravenscraig and the extent of subsidization.

★ We will carry out an extensive information program to provide the public with the facts about this important case.

On April 28, the President of our union, Lloyd McBride, testified before the Steel Caucus of the U.S. House of Representatives about this matter. He closed with these words:

"We may be witnessing here the beginning—for the U.S.—of the internationalization of American steel production. And when steel companies engage in what is essentially unfair trade for the purpose of shifting their production base out of steel for the advantage of their shareholders, then our union and its members are being severely injured and sorely used. Our steel communities are severely impacted. And, I submit to you, our nation is the worse for it. When private decisions have such widespread, devastating consequences on the private and public sectors, those decisions should not be made unilaterally without a thorough investigation of the consequences."

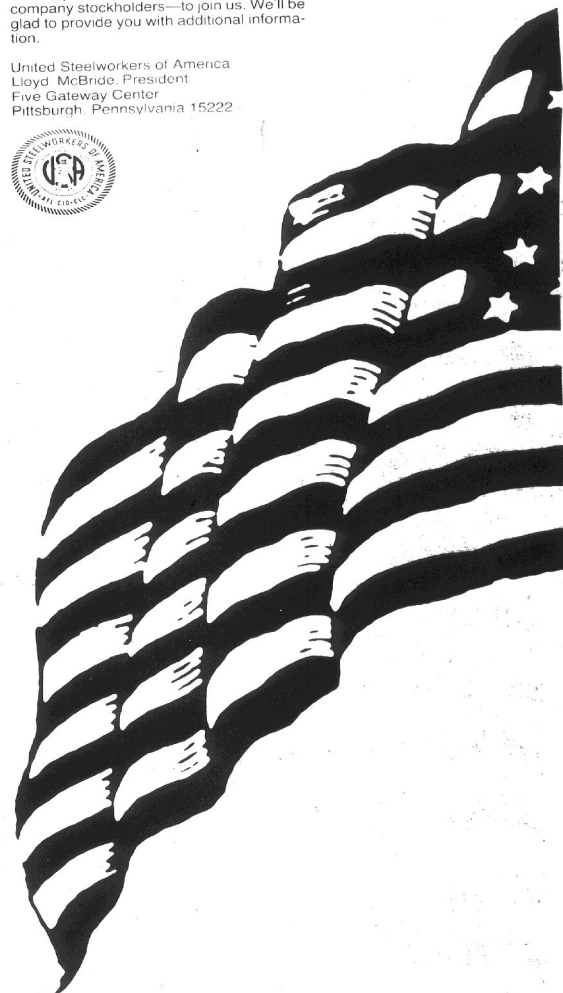

The consequences of U.S. Steel's proposed joint venture with the British Steel Corporation are indeed great. An entire industry as we have come to know it is at stake. U.S. Steel is single-handedly attempting to forge a new national steel policy for America.

The Steelworkers of America are prepared to fight this dangerous proposal at every juncture. And we want your help.

We invite others who share our views on this important matter—especially steel company stockholders—to join us. We'll be glad to provide you with additional information.

27 more GC teachers nired

By BILL WINTER of the Press-Record

Another 27 honorably dismissed teachers were rehired for 1983-84 on Tuesday night. Taking into account 27 who were rehired May 3, the dismissal list has been trimmed from 192 to 138. There currently are 382 teachers.

The board named John "Jack" Mulach to continue as Maryville School principal. With Lake School being closed, Edward Gonwa had been scheduled to transfer to Maryville. But Gonwa resigned two weeks ago, effective at the end of the spring term, to accept a Chicago area administrative position.

Gonwa addressed the board, thanking the members and Supt. B. J. Davis for their roles in his 25-year career in the Granite City school system.

Elementary resource teachers in 1983-84 will include Marilyn Bilyeu, who is the Parkview resource teacher in 1982-83, Christy Hoff, Niedringhaus resource, Deborah Hackney, Wilson educable handicapped, Anne Harzall, Wilson trainable handicapped, Marilyn Frith, Webster resource teacher at present, Sheila Loftus, Logan resource, and Sandra Niedringhaus middle primary teacher.

Speech therapists will include Vincent Rodig, currently a Coolidge Junior High speech teacher, Mary Osterhoff, a high school speech teacher, and Sandra Dawson, an elementary speech teacher.

High school special education teaching posts will go to Jean Zotti, a Wilson resource teacher, Max Speer, a Wilson teacher of educable handicapped, Bob Gagliano, currently a high school special teacher, and Steve Hamilton, a Frohardt resource instructor.

Trainable handicapped will be taught by Diane Evans of the Coolidge, and Mary R. Snelson, a Wilson resource teacher.

Continuing in their present positions will be Diane Morthland, Wilson educable, Lynn Whiteside, Coolidge educable, Carol Reinking, psychologist, Vincenzo DeLeonardi, social worker, and Bob Page, Parkview behavioral class.

Carla Ziff will continue as a teacher of visually impaired but will work only half of each day.

Other 1983-84 assignments are: Margaret Amisch, elementary nurse (Prather Junior High, nurse now), Cynthia Mills, early childhood (Maryville resource), Lynn Davis, Wilson behavioral (Logan resource) and Jill Conover, multiple handicaps (Lake early childhood class at present).

Jane Isenburg, who is a Frohardt middle primary teacher, was rehired for a 1983-84 position yet to be designated.

In addition to faculty cutbacks, the Board of Education on May 3 honorably dismissed 21 custodians, 17 secretaries, nine cafeteria workers and an executive secretary.

The dismissal of Norma Roney as an executive secretary was rescinded Tuesday night; instead, she will be on leave of absence in 1983-84.

Additional honorable dismissals for 1983-84 voted this week affect Ed Mercer, North High campus monitor, Gail Mathenia, a teacher assistant, and Shirley Frick, also a teacher assistant.

Dorothy M. Hamilos, a secretary at the board office, announced June 1986 retirement plans. She has been a Granite City school employee 17 years.

For the Quad-City special education region, it was decided to contract with psychologist Pam Gindler for 20 days' work this summer, hire Dr. Michael Cray as a consultant on several children with multiple handicaps, and seek bids for purchase of two Apple IIe computers as communicative devices with multiply handicapped at Parkview and GCHS South.

No decision was made on whether to rename GCHS South as Granite City Senior High School, and whether to continue designating athletic teams there as the Warriors.

The board was receptive to those two recommendations from the combined 1983-84 student council, but was unable to decide on a student proposal that the school colors be red, black and, temporarily, gray.

Supt. B. J. Davis urged red and black only, saying funds are lacking to alter team uniforms.

He added, "This would leave the color gray still available for North High should circumstances reverse themselves and we should again need to use this color for the school."

The three decisions will be made June 7; the board also plans to meet June 28, when end-of-year financial transfers will be authorized.

Action also was postponed until June 7 on the new school calendar, tentatively running from Aug. 23 to June 1. Several board members felt it might be better to start the term after Labor Day, which is Sept. 5.

In other matters, the board:

- Decided to wait for a State Education Board ruling on whether a speech teacher can instruct hearing impaired pupils.
- Briefly discussed where a trainable class could be taught.
- Accepted memorabilia from the Johnson and Nameoki schools and PTAs. They are among six schools being closed; 12 will operate instead of the present 18.

Honored Coolidge eighth grade student Becky Palovich, winner of national photographic recognition.

Renamed Prather Junior High School as Prather Elementary School, eliminating an earlier plan to call it Prather-Logan.

Sought $74,688 in Chapter II federal funding for 1983-84 textbooks, achievement tests, software programs, equipment and instructional materials.

Applied for $436,029 for Chapter I remedial reading and remedial mathematics programs at Coolidge, Marshall, Webster, Wilson and Prather, noting that projected funding of 85 percent would provide $370,625, bolstered by a $196,890 balance.

The Mitchell Athletic Club and Mitchell Volleyball are holding their annual parade Saturday, May 21, at 1 p.m. The parade will start at Mitchell School and finish at the MAC athletic fields.

The crowning of the queen and her attendants will end the parade.

According to Parade Chairman Gene P. Reinhardt, American Legion Post 307 will be the color guard. Also in the parade will be the Granite City High School North Band, pom-pom's, drill team, State Sen. Sam Vadala, State Rep. Sam Wolf, Sheriff Emil Tufant, Mitchell Fire Department, senior citizens, and the Shriners' Rolling Nobles.

Arson in garage fire

Arson is blamed for a fire at 11:35 p.m. Tuesday that caused $600 damage to a frame garage at the rear of the home of Louise Sadegh, 2168 Lee Ave.

Two plastic bottles believing gasoline were confiscated at the scene of the blaze. The fire apparently was set on opposite sides of the building, which had been utilized as a storage shed.

As a fire truck turned into the alley on its way to the fire, the right side of the truck bent a metal fence post in the rear yard of the Norman Ruff residence at 2172 Lee.

She was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center along with her two passengers, Lisa M. Daniels, 22, Rural Route One, and Daria R. Slaggs, 25, of 2828 Dogwood Drive. All three received cuts and bruises.

Baker was charged with failing to reduce speed to avoid the crash and with failing to ever obtain a driving license.

1983 SOUTH PROM

I would like to thank the party for removing our belongings and taking over our reserved table.

I'd also like to thank the administrator in charge for giving us a "comparable" table which was up front, and only a yard away from the band's large speakers. The speakers were turned away from our table by Mr. Kennerly, so we could once again hear ourselves think. The table had an added attraction of butter which someone had smeared all over it. But, most of all, I'd like to thank the above party for leaving early, and Cheryl for being the only star out that night.

Park plans run, other events to celebrate parks and recreation month

The Granite City Park District plans a variety of athletic and musical events to celebrate the National Park and Recreation Association's theme of June as park and recreation month.

A series of special weekend programs will start with a five-kilometer run from downtown Granite City to Wilson Park on June 4. The race will begin at 10 a.m. at 27th Street and Cleveland Boulevard. Runners will go to 20th Street, on to Edison Avenue and back to 27th Street through Wilson Park to the finish line. On June 5, the park district will hold a Horseshoe Throwing Tournament at the courts along Benton Street in Wilson Park. There also will be music in the park that weekend, featuring Howard Bolton and the "Alleycats" band.

A mixed doubles tennis tournament will highlight the June 11 and 12 weekend. John Van Buskirk, Granite City High School North tennis coach, will direct the event. He also will be in charge of this summer's tennis instruction for the park district.

On June 12, the park will sponsor a country-western concert featuring the music of Jerry Adams and his "Country Music Machine." A "2 on 2 Basketball Tournament" will be hosted at the Wilson Park basketball courts on the weekend of June 18 and 19. The musical event will be provided June 19 by the "Polka Kings" from Waterloo, Ill. A Frisbee Throw Contest will be judged along 27th Street in Wilson Park on June 26. Elmer Black and the "Variety Men" will provide the musical entertainment.

Registration for the various events can be completed at the Wilson Park Office, Benton Avenue and Oregon Street, or on the day of the event at the site of each competition. Ribbons or trophies will be awarded to the winners of each special June event. There will be no charge to compete.

The concerts will be from 2 to 4 p.m. and most will be located at the front entrance of the park on 27th Street. Bands are being co-sponsored through the joint cooperation of the park district, Nestle Company and Musician's Protective Union Local 717.

The park district invites everyone to take part in these activities during the month of June and hopes everyone will come to the park and enjoy the many events," David Nolan, director of park and recreation, said.

Additional information on each activity will be released prior to the date of the event.

The park district is encouraging volunteers to assist with the June programs. Those interested may contact the park office by calling 877-3059.

The park commissioners and Nolan gave Mayor Paul Schuler a proclamation to sign Tuesday night that officially declared June as park and recreation month.

Teachers' union awards four-year scholarships

The Granite City Federation of Teachers has announced the two recipients of the union's four-year scholarships for this year are seniors Allison M. Ashmore and Lisa D. Greene.

Miss Ashmore is graduating from Granite City High School North, where she was a member of the National Honor Society, band, Science Club, Social Studies Club, Foreign Language Club, Modern Music Masters and Silver Spirits. ## House adopts bills for Ill. coal tax credits

State Representative Sam W. Wolf (D-Granite City) reports that the House has approved legislation allowing tax credits for corporations investing in coal utilization research and equipment.

The legislation, HB 730, supported by Wolf, would allow two types of income tax credits for corporations. One available credit would be equal to 20 percent of expenditures on coal utilization research sponsored or approved by the Illinois Coal Research Board.

The other available tax credit would be equal to 5 percent of expenditures during a taxable year on equipment purchased for increasing the use of Illinois coal at any facility owned, leased or operated by the corporation.

"I am pleased that the House took this step toward maximizing the use of Illinois coal," Wolf said. "The bottom line is that when more Illinois coal is used, there will be more jobs for our Illinois coal miners."

"For the past several years, Western states have been encouraging the development and export of their coal resources," Wolf continued. "The result has been a decline in the use of Illinois coal and an increase in importing Western coal into Illinois."

"This legislation will encourage corporations to invest in the necessary research to utilize our in-state coal and to purchase equipment to make Illinois coal usable on a large scale," Wolf stated.

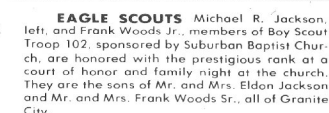

HB 730 passed the House on a vote of 65 to 47; it now goes to the Senate for hearings.

The honors were conferred at a family night and troop court of honor, which was attended by Lefty Stark, Uniway District vice chairman for Scouting Advancement, and District Commissioner Fred Mercer.

Scout Executive William Monical of the Cahokia Monical Council, Boy Scouts of America, who also serves as troop 102 scoutmaster, introduced the youths, commenting that "both are fine young men."

Jackson, 18, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Jackson, 2205 Glen Drive, and a pre-law freshman at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

He is a 1982 graduate of Granite City High School South, where he was active in the band program and served as drum major in his senior year.

Jackson has been a member of the Boy Scout organization since the age of 11 and joined Troop 102 two years ago. He is currently serving as assistant scoutmaster of the troop.

Woods, 15, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woods Sr., 2404 Sunbury Drive, and a sophomore at Granite City High School South.

He also has been involved in scouting since 11 years old and has served as a patrol leader. Currently, he is the chaplain's aide for the troop.

At school, Woods is active in the field of drama and his interests also lie in the broadcast media.

In the course of their scouting activities, both youths have accumulated numerous awards, ribbons and specialty badges.

From 1968 to 1972 he was director of bands at Saint Joseph's College in Rensselaer, Ind. The band grew from 18 members to 90 players and, in the summer of 1971, played a 23-day con-

House votes for stricter graduation requirements

By STATE REP. SAM W. WOLF

Last week was the only week in which the House devoted its time to legislation for the first time. The results were long hours, heated debate and the occasional partisan flare-up.

Nonetheless, the General Assembly passed nearly 100 bills, and four times that many still remain on the calendar.

One outstanding issue is that of appropriating the budgets for the various state agencies. As the Appropriations Committee met, it was felt that more information on the income tax proposal was needed.

Nonetheless, the General Assembly passed nearly 100 bills, and four times that many still remain on the calendar.

I am one of the members who is deeply concerned that we cannot continue to spend money on any agency appropriations without a better understanding of the long-range budget plans.

The House passed legislation to increase the curriculum requirements for high school graduates. The recent report entitled "A Nation at Risk," by the National Commission on Excellence in Education, established there is a deterioration in our educational system.

In particular, the report notes a de-emphasis on mathematics, science and those subjects needed by students to compete in our technological society. The legislation, which I supported, is a step toward insuring a strong education system for our children.

I supported legislation last week to allow Chicago to raise its tax levy for Chicago school funds. Although I do not support "higher taxes" as a concept, this is a case of keeping Peter from borrowing from Paul.

Year after year, the City of Chicago comes to Springfield for increased monies for schools. While I appreciate the problems Chicago may have in its school system, I cannot support the continuing bail-out of Chicago schools.

For this reason, I voted to let the burden fall on Chicago homeowners instead of those in Granite City, Edwardsville or any of our communities' taxpayers.

As more and more corporate farms employ migrant or other farm workers, a consumer concern has arisen regarding sanitary facilities on these farms, and the effect on consumer products.

We all want to feel confident that produce bought at the supermarket is free from contamination or disease. For that reason, I supported, and the House passed, legislation requiring certain sanitary facilities and standards on these "truck" farms.

Last year, the state facility in Dixon was closed to make room for prison facilities. This was not the only state facility for the mentally handicapped or the developmentally disabled to be closed.

The end result of these closures has been economic chaos in the communities in which the facilities are located for the residents of these facilities.

For these reasons, the House passed two bills, HB 619 and 620, requiring General Assembly review of facility closures and review of plans for transferring clients after closure.

Sometimes hasty decisions are made in difficult economic times and the result is needless suffering. I believe these two bills will prevent such situations in the future.

The first meeting of the State-Federal Task Force on Natural Gas was held last week.

The Task Force, chaired by Congressman Paul Simon and Tom Corcoran, will hold hearings throughout the state to consider programs and policies to bring utility prices under control.

As I have studied the utility rate issue, I have come to realize that a huge percentage of our increases are due to federal regulatory policy.

While this does not change the responsibility we as legislators must take in utility reform, it does underline the need for a coordinated effort on the part of state and federal officials.

I plan to testify before this task force in the near future and make certain that Task Force members understand the economic hardship which skyrocketing utility rates have caused.

I hope to keep you informed during the rest of this session as bills come before the House of Representatives for final recommendations. As always, I look forward to hearing your concerns and input on any issues.

Judge Isbell puzzled over lack of retention

Roy O. Guiley, Illinois Supreme Court administrator, assured officials of the Third Judicial Circuit this week that there was no error in tabulating the ballots of the circuit judges who voted not to retain Associate Judge Jonathan Isbell of Illinois.

Chief Circuit Judge A.A. Matossian of Granite City said that he contacted Guiley's office after hearing of the results of the voting and asked if there could be any mistakes. Guiley assured him that the ballots had been carefully counted.

Judge Matossian said, "He said he had faith in the technique (used to count the ballots)." Matossian told the Press-Record.

Isbell has applied for reappointment by the circuit court judge to his post, but says he is not sure whether he has a chance, since he does not know why he was ousted. "There is nothing I know of now that can cure any deficiency that didn't exist," he says, pointing to a clear record and no known disputes with any of the circuit judges.

Judge Isbell noted that in a recent Illinois State Bar evaluation, lawyers gave him an 86 percent ranking, which is high. In all areas of the evaluation, he received marks exceeding 80 percent. "It would seem to indicate that something other than competency was used to evaluate me. The court statistics speak for themselves," Judge Isbell stated.

He said he fears that "factors beyond my control" were the reason for the ouster and those same factors could be used to keep him from being reappointed. However, he noted, it is difficult to correct a problem just because it has been identified. "I thought I did everything right," he concluded.

Five charges against man

As police were checking for 1983-84 city auto licenses at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at 19th and Benton streets, Olivett Taylor, 34, allegedly objected and fought officers when they arrested him.

With addresses on Cayuga Street and in Mitchell, Taylor said he had moved out of the city six months ago and did not require a windshield sticker. He was charged with failing to notify the Illinois secretary of state of an address change.

Officers said they were struck and kicked and that repeated threats were voiced. In addition to the address change arrest, the motorist was booked on resisting arrest, disorderly conduct and two counts of aggravated assault.

Taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center with a scalp laceration, Taylor declined treatment. He was released on $358 bail at 5:45 p.m.

according to State Rep. Sam W. Wolf, (D-Granite City).

The House overwhelmingly approved House Bill 99, supported by Wolf, to prohibit utility companies from automatically passing on to consumers the cost of importing western coal to Illinois.

Under the bill, utilities will have to go before the Illinois Commerce Commission to justify including transportation costs in the rate base, thus giving Illinois coal a competitive advantage.

"I'm convinced this bill will help put Illinois coal miners back to work," Wolf said.

Wolf notes the automatic pass-through of transportation costs amounts to nothing more than another subsidy for western coal. "We are subsidizing western coal at a rate of some $20 million a year in severance taxes and extraction fees," he added.

"We're sending our money to western states to buy their coal, employ their people, pay their taxes, deliver their services and — unemployment our own coal miners."

"This makes no sense to me and this bill will help to put a stop to it," Wolf said.

The bill now goes to the Senate for consideration.

Woman stabbed, man is charged

Everett Eugene Welch, 42, of the 2000 block of Johnson Road was arrested at 9:40 p.m. Tuesday on charges of aggravated assault, battery, criminal trespass and disorderly conduct after Gina Clifton, 20, of Johnson Road was stabbed in both arms and on the chin at 4 a.m. that day in her home.

She was treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center at 6 p.m. Tuesday for the knife wounds and for bruises on the abdomen and on the right leg and knee. She had been struck and kicked repeatedly. It is alleged two folding knives were wielded by the assailant.

Bonds for Welch on the five charges total $47,300. He also was booked on April 5 battery allegations.

In Freeburg Regional

Trojans down Valmeyer 8-7; advance in regional

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

MADISON — Madison High School baseball coach Ron Crader is a man of his word.

Crader promised that all his players, starters non-starters, they would play in Tuesday's first round Freeburg Regional game against Valmeyer.

And, Crader kept his promise. Of the nine regular starters, only two walked on to the field in the first inning Tuesday: pitcher Robert Robinson and catcher John Brawley. The rest had been reserves for most of the season.

At first, it looked as though the Trojans would exit the inning without suffering much damage. Robinson struck out the first batter and then got the second batter to ground out to him. Then trouble began.

The Pirates' third batter, second baseman Greg Sondag, slapped a hard shot to shortstop Tom Schmidt. The ball deflected off Schmidt's foot into the field.

Then clean-up hitter Kurt Steinmann singled to leftfield to move Sondag to third. With runners on first and third, Valmeyer's Larry Chambers doubled to score both Sondag and Steinmann.

Chambers advanced to third on Robinson's errant attempt to pick off him off. The throw, which was in the dirt, eluded first baseman John Jackson, to get out of play.

The Pirates' sixth batter of the inning, Brian Garleb, bloomed a single just past the infield to score Chambers, who had taken advantage of a good lead.

Trailing 3-0, Robinson walked the next two Pirate batters to load the bases and then took matters into his own hands and retired Jim Meadows. Meadows was victim of Robinson's tailing slider.

Despite a Trojan offense that went down 1-2-3 for the first two innings, Crader kept his promise to play everyone. Trailing 4-0 at the time, Crader, the good guy, was beginning to look like Crader, the good Samaritan who lost his shirt. His goodwill was taking a heavy toll on Madison's chances of advancing to the second round of the regional.

"It was simple. I promised everyone they'd get to play in the regional game," Crader said. "These kids come to practice and work hard. They play with them. It's all motivation and desire. Not the technical stuff."

The turning point for Madison came in the second inning. The Pirates had just picked up their fourth run, when Kurt Steinmann lined a shot to second baseman Darrell (Goosie) Marshall. Marshall, who was moving to second base anyway to keep Paul Hill close, caught the line shot near second, stepped on the bag to get Hill and then threw to first to get Sondag.

A triple play!

The rejuvenated Trojans did a little better in the third inning. Following Dan Pendley's strike out, Pat Gasper walked and then Jackson picked up Madison's first hit of the game as he slapped a hard bouncer past Meadows at shortstop.

With runners on first and second, Robert Bishop, replacing Mike Mainbridge in the lineup, smacked a single to rightfield to load the bases.

Then, Marshall doubled to deep centerfield to clear the bases and move Madison to within one run, 4-3.

Next it was Chris Noud's turn. The Trojan shortstop rapped a game-tying double to left-centerfield to score Marshall and then reached third on a passed ball.

With Noud seemingly safely tucked away on third with one out, Brawley lined out to Sondag at second base. Sondag threw to third baseman Hill, in time to get Noud before he could get back to third to end the Trojan rally.

After an uneventful fourth inning for both teams, Valmeyer broke the 4-4 tie in the fifth inning when Robinson scored to put Sondag on and then issued passes to Kurt Steinmann, Chambers and Garleb, who scored Sondag.

With the bases loaded, the fifth batter of the inning, Anthony Naimey, bounced a grounder to Robinson. The Madison hurler threw home to force out Kurt Steinmann and then Brawley threw to first for the double play, one of two the Trojans pulled off during the contest.

Valmeyer made it 6-4 when Kerry Steinmann singled in Chambers with a shot to centerfield. Robinson retired the side by getting Meadows to line out to Marshall.

In its half of the fifth, Madison managed three runs on as many hits. Following Pat Wilson's strike out, Victor Valentine, batting left handed, pulled a beautiful double down the open third base line. Then with two outs, following Bishop's pop out to leftfield, Marshall reached on a full-count pass to put runners on first and second. Then, Noud picked up his second double of the afternoon, scoring Valentine.

With Madison runners on second and third, Brawley followed suit with a single to bring in both Marshall and Noud and give the Trojans their first lead of the afternoon, 7-6.

Chambers, however, put an end to the Trojan rally by kaying Robinson for the third out.

Valmeyer managed to tie the game in the top of the sixth when lead-off batter Willie Castillo reached on a pass and Kurt Steinmann singled him to knot the game. A fly out and two infield ground outs retired the Pirates in the sixth.

Madison went ahead in its half of the sixth when Valentine singled in Jim Smith who reached who reached on a lead-off pass by reliever Kerry Steinmann. Steinmann threw just seven pitches but issued to the pass to Smith which turned out to be the winning run. Madison managed to hold off the Pirates in the seventh for the victory.

The win pits the Trojans against Dupo today at 4 p.m. in Freeburg. The Trojans are 5-10 on the season, and that's the best record they've had in recent memory.

The Pirates close their season with a 2-15 record.

Cougars down Mankato; head for World Series

By AL BARNES
for the Press-Record

EDWARDSVILLE — Ill-fitting, awesome and brutal batting, carried the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville baseball team most of the regular 1983 season and, in the process, landed them in the Midwest NCAA Division II Regional tournament along with Northeast Missouri State, Northwest Missouri State and Mankato State of Minnesota. Now, after winning that tournament, the Cougars (33-13) of Coach Gary (Bo) Collins are flying (literally) tomorrow (Friday) to the West Coast to compete for the Little World Series crown of collegiate baseball. The six-school field which will battle it out Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Wednesday, if needed, are, in addition to SIU-E, Valdosta State of Georgia, Florida Southern, Quinnipiac College of Hamden, Connecticut, Cal-Poly U. and Jacksonville State (Alabama) U. Going into the final phase of the '83 season, Granite City's Tom Greco, whose screeching double Monday gave the Cougars a much-needed insurance run in the bottom of the 8th frame against the rallying Mankato Mavericks, still has a chance of winning the team batting crown. He's trailing Tim Gamble by a catch-up margin (.365 to .350).

SIUE landed six players on the All-tournament team: Brian Kabbes, designated hitter; Ted Smith, pitcher; Terry Cochran, second; George Vogel, outfield center; Tim Gamble (outfield) and Scott Wilkerson, catcher.

Is there a lawsuit brewing over Bigham's firing?

Academics and athletics.

Anytime, it seems, the two are at war as often as they are at peace.

The latest conflict has surfaced in our own backyard—Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. As a result, SIUE's Athletic Director, Eldon Bigham, has been relieved of his duties as AD. He is "being reassigned" to a teaching position.

But there's more. Could there be a lawsuit brewing as a result of Bigham's dismissal? When asked about it Wednesday evening at his home, Bigham said he thought the actions taken against him were too harsh. Although he neither confirmed nor denied a pending lawsuit, he offered the following comment: "Let me put it this way." Bigham said, "I do feel as though the action taken against me was too severe. There have been other events in this university's past which were at least equal, and those people were not fired."

"I think a lot of people around here are on edge because of the economic situation, with cutbacks and all. I feel like I was made the scapegoat on the whole issue," Bigham concluded.

The whole controversy stems from a story that recently appeared in the ALSTLE, SIUE's student newspaper.

It was reported that the Cougars' two tennis stars, Ken Flach and Robert Seguso, have each neglected classes since the end of Fall Quarter last December.

According to the story, written by Joe Mueller, Flach, a junior, and Seguso, a sophomore, have masterminded the plan so they could devote their attention towards planning their professional tennis careers. By the end of Fall Quarter, both were on "good academic standing," but by the end of last quarter, because of their negligence, had fallen to "scholastic warning."

Despite the warning status, both were still able to compete in athletics. According to the SIUE guidelines for athletic eligibility, athletes may still compete despite the "warning" status. Now, should

Sports on the Run

By Al Gerstenecker

the pair's plans change, and they decide to stay at SIUE next year, they will not be able to compete because they would be on scholastic "probation."

But, as they have so keenly planned their calendars, they will not be at SIUE next quarter. Instead, they will be swinging their rackets on the professional tennis circuit. The two have turned "p-o" after the Cougars won an unprecedented sixth NCAA championship last week in San Marcos, Texas.

In short, the two have used the school's own academic system and made a mockery of it for their own benefit.

No wonder SIUE students are up in arms! The pair's admitted abuse of the system has prompted a flurry of responses from students and faculty members.

To date, the ALSTLE has been deluged with letters to the editor condemning the tennis players' abuse of the system. According to Ed King, ALSTLE editor, the paper has received nearly 20 letters denouncing Flach, Flach and Seguso's actions and the entire athletic program is under fire. King said it is by far the largest single topic this year to which persons have responded.

SIUE President Earl Lazerson responded last Friday with a three-part announcement stating that the university would not seek Division I status, something it's administrators have considered for at least a year; Barbara DeLong, president of the Faculty Senate, would head a task force to review academic standards and procedures as they relate to the intercollegiate athletic program; and lastly Dr. James R. Buck was assumed Bigham's responsibility for management of the intercollegiate athletic program.

The administration exists to support the academic welfare of the university. Available resources of the institution will be directed to the support of that effort. The central focus of administrative activity will continue to be the development and maintenance of a University whose strength resides in its academic accomplishments. No other course is acceptable," Lazerson concluded.

In conclusion, it appears that Lazerson, by means of his firm announcement, is attempting to ease the tension created by the Mueller story.

And as for Bigham being the scapegoat... well, I think Ed's a good guy and he's done a lot for the university's athletic program. But as AD he's supposed to solve the disputes between athletics and academics, not aggravate them.

One last comment on the subject: It's a shame when two people, who are gifted athletes and have an opportunity to receive a full scholarship from a quality university, throw it away for immediate riches. I just they're still as happy with the situation in 20 years.

On a more pleasant note, the United States Youth Soccer Association has announced that the Region II Select Team Tournament will be held in Alton next month.

According to Steve Schwartz, Region II boys' coordinator, the tournament, which will host over 650 athletes from all over the Midwest, will be held at Alton's Gordon Moore Park on June 11 and 12.

Schwartz said during the two-day tourney four teams—two boys' and two girls'—will emerge as Midwest Region champions. Boys and girls champs will be named in each age group—under 15½ and under 17½ years.

But that's only for show. The real goal of the Midwest tourney is to begin a selection process for the 1985 National Soccer Team which will compete for the World Youth Cup, sponsored by FIFA, the international governing body of amateur soccer.

The top 18 girls selected from region tourney will go to Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, Pa. for the National Select Team July 23-29.

The top 36 boys in each age group will move on to the National Select Team camp in Evansville, Ind. July 17-23.

It's big time stuff.

More on this later.

Granite City's girls' under 19 soccer team has lost its most recent appeal to get back into McGuire Cup competition. According to Granite City Soccer Club coach Bob Kurilla, the team has lost its appeal to be reinstated into competition.

"But," says Kurilla, "it's not over. We're going to reappeal to a higher body."

This area's representative, the Collinsville Untouchables, have been eliminated by Wisconsin. Kurilla's team, by the way, has made it to the national championship the last two years. And, he says, this is his best team ever.

Good luck in your appeal.

Coolidge tracksters break Edwardsville's streak

BETHALTO — Coolidge Junior High's seventh grade boys' track team broke Edwardsville Junior High's championship stranglehold on the three divisions of the Madison County Junior High Conference Track Meet here on May 6.

Edwardsville was an easy winner in both the girls' and the boys' eighth grade competition, but Coolidge's seventh grade boys proved to be the powerhouse this year.

In girls' competition, Edwardsville, with 111, outdistanced second place Prather by 41 points, while Coolidge and Prather tied with 54 points. In the eighth grade boys' competition, Edwardsville outdistanced second place Grigsby by 35 points. Madison was third with 66 points, while Coolidge and Prather were sixth and seventh respectively.

In seventh grade competition, where Coolidge shown its brilliance, the Braves edged Edwardsville for first-place honors by 3½ points. Coolidge managed 40 points, Edwardsville was second with 36½ while Grigsby fell to fifth and Prather was seventh.

In the eighth grade competition, it was Grigsby's Gary Crane (three firsts) and Steve Becker (two firsts) which enabled the Gators the strong second place finish.

In seventh grade competition, Coach Keith Parker's Braves, ironically, won the team title without winning any individual firsts. Instead, the Braves edged a balanced winning performance, picking up numerous seconds and thirds to run up its team point total.

The meet had special significance to Prather, with this being the school's final athletic event. The school is being absorbed in the school consolidation. Also, due to teacher cutoff, the event was probably the last to be coached by Mike Harmon, Grigsby track coach and assistant basketball coach for the Warriors. Harmon had coached four years at Central and most recently 10 years at Grigsby.

Bulgarian Ladies donate to aid Statue of Liberty

An unusual decision was made at the recent meeting of the Macedonian Bulgarian Ladies Aid Society. President Tomea Kirchoff reported that the organization, composed of immigrants from the Balkan area and their descendants, overwhelmingly chose to support the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Centennial Commission, which will restore the crumbling buildings and correct the deterioration of the Statue of Liberty in time for its 100-year celebration next year. To Mrs. Kirchoff's knowledge, this organization is among the first in the metropolitan area to join the national drive.

"I was deeply touched to hear about the state of disrepair of Ellis Island and the serious degeneration of the beautiful Statue of Liberty. The statue is truly a symbol of liberty and opportunity,"

I felt we should do whatever we can, even if it be in a small way, to support the Commission to help restore the statue to the dignity it deserves," said Mrs. Kirchoff.

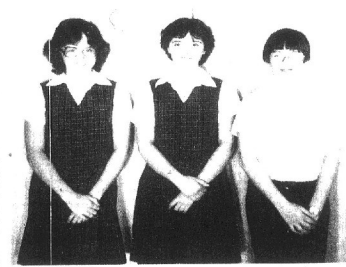

Mrs. Kirchoff also stated, "We have always had a deep sense of loyalty, gratitude and love for America which welcomed our people, gave us opportunity to rear our families in freedom and with great hope for the future. Most of our immigrants arrived by boat between 1890 and 1920 and Ellis Island was a gateway to a new world."

Our first thought was the Statue of Liberty. The memories we have as small children and young adults, the emotions we experienced, and the uncertainties we faced will be forever embedded in our minds. Each family has its own fascinating story concerning its arrival and each has a lasting impression of the experience."

The Macedonian Bulgarian Ladies Aid Society celebrated its 50th anniversary last month. The oldest member is 95 years old. "Our club activities are somewhat limited, and our fund-raising practically nonexistent, but we still felt we wanted to contribute $100 toward the restoration. Hopefully, our small and humble gift may challenge other organizations in the community, and private donors as well, to do the same. If each ethnic organization makes a contribution, just think how much can be accomplished," added Mrs. Kirchoff.

All donations may be sent to Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Centennial Commission, Box 1866, New York, N.Y. 10018.

Cloverview club to study house plants

The Cloverview Garden Club was hosted by Mrs. Charles Gandorla, 2537 Lynch Ave., at Charlie's Restaurant, with a dessert luncheon served to Mrs. Robert McCauley, Mrs. Clarence Etheridge, Mrs. Louise Sedlack, Mrs. George Stearns, Mrs. John Jenkins, Mrs. John Lentz, Mrs. Albert Taylor and Mrs. B. C. O'Neill.

The meeting opened with Mrs. Lentz reading the club collect. Mrs. O'Neill, president, introduced the Kitchen House Plant Book by Jack Kramer. This book will be the program study for the year 1983-84.

She stated that most people spend a great deal of time in their kitchen, but this room is often overlooked as a place for plants.

"They provide color and cheer, and the kitchen generally provides ideal conditions for them. Adequate humidity comes from running water and the steam from cooking, and it always is easy to water plants from the nearby sink," she related.

"In addition, kitchen lights are on for long hours, and artificial light helps plants grow."

An invitation to the club was received for the Edwardsville Garden Club's 43rd annual rose luncheon to be held at Cottonwood Mall, June 2. The program will be on wedding flowers.

Mrs. Etheridge gave a program on African violets and had three plants to exhibit. The colors were pink, white, and lavender.

The study was given by Mrs. Jenkins. Mrs. O'Neill presented an orange ribbon at the district workshop on all members who had brought in a new member. Cloverview's new member was sponsored by Mrs. Lentz.

Mrs. O'Neill was presented a cash award for the Mabel Fitzsimons Home Garden Design. Three awards were given to the district director at the state convention in Chicago.

Others present at the workshop were Mrs. Gandorla, Mrs. Etheridge, Mrs. Stearns and Mrs. Jenkins. The Cloverview Club received a blue rosetta ribbon for meeting state and district requirements for the past year.

The June meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. Taylor, 1736 Primrose Ave.

Venice Women's Club phasing out after 28 years of service

The Venice Women's Club was organized in March, 1955, for the purpose of contributing to the benefit of the youth of the community. Now that the club members feel the goal has been reached to the best of their ability and satisfaction, they are phasing out as a club, according to Madonna Groshong, president.

The Venice School Board granted permission to the club to hold monthly meetings in the high school economics room in the high school building.

The club offered scholarships to deserving students. Two were selected each year, preferably a boy and girl. The selection was made by a teachers' committee.

Each year, the senior class was given a party honoring the graduation. A speaker was chosen from a group of public officials, business, educational, religious figures and the medical profession. Each student was presented a useful gift, such as a pen and pencil set.

The club sponsored teenage dances. Music was supplied by bands furnished by the Musicians' Union. They were held in the school gym and chaperoned by the members and mothers.

For a period of time, full length films were shown for children and their parents.

When the Venice Recreation Center was built, the club was given permission to hold meetings there and it has been the permanent home since then.

Other programs in which the club participated in were sponsoring the Venice Girl Scout troop and Venice Crippled Children's Organization.

During the Vietnam conflict, Press-Records were sent to the Venice military servicemen stationed there.

They were well received.

Fund-raising projects mainly were the annual chicken dinners and contributions from interested people. Three business persons were the largest yearly contributors, C. E. Townsend, former editor and publisher of the Granite City Press-Record, Mary Laher, owner and operator of the former Lahey Funeral Home, and Joseph Glik (deceased), owner and operator of the Glik's Store.

Mrs. Groshong recalls, "We were treated superbly by our friends and the public in general. We all have pleasant memories of our association in the community service. We were never refused when contacting a speaker or any consideration from the public. We were proud of the students and wish them success."

The new officers will be installed in formal installation ceremonies at the club's sixth annual dinner meeting scheduled June 4.

President-elect Kieffer joined the Lioness Club in August of 1978 at the time her son was a Pontoon Beach Leo. ## Eagles Aerie honors Auxiliary

The Eagles Aerie honored the Auxiliary with a Mother's Day dinner at the Eagles Home. The dinner was cooked, prepared and served by the men at tables decorated with baskets of fresh cut flowers. The prayer was given by Helen Robinson, Linda Bone, Barbara Bilbey and Ann Hordesky.

Kathleen Reed reported that 387 cash has been donated to four state charities, which included Crippled Children, Heart Fund, Cancer and State Project.

An election of delegates to the State Auxiliary Convention in June was held and Angie Buehler and Vincenz Zerlan are to be delegates and Carol Hill and Leona Delafaye are the alternates.

Helen Frazier, the secretary, cast the ballot to elect the new officers for the year 1983-84.

The Auxiliary Mother for the past year, Helen Lipchik, was escorted to the altar with a Mother's Day gift by Ms. Von Nida. She also received many gifts and cards from members. Also, Carol Hill, the District Auxiliary Mother for the year, was escorted to the altar and presented with a gift.

The attendance prize was received by Lucille Pierce, and the white elephant prize, donated by Alia Yurko, was won by Sylvia Simurda.

It was voted to donate $10 each to the State Disaster Fund, the Golden Eagle Fund, and the Eagle Education Fund.

Thank you notes were received from Mrs. Von Nida for her birthday party and gifts at the last meeting, and also from the family of John Hordesky, husband of member Ann Hordesky, who recently died.

6-week GC summer high school classes

A June 3-July 15 summer school schedule has been planned for Granite City high school students.

All summer classes will be held at the GCIS South campus. Registration fees are $37 per class and are not refundable after June 2.

Summer school classes will begin at 8 a.m. on Friday, June 3, and end at noon Friday, July 15; Monday, July 4, is a holiday. July 15 is a day of mandatory attendance.

The following classes will be taught if there is a minimum enrollment of 20 students per class:

Freshman composition (failures only).

Freshman literature (failures only).

Oral communication.

American literature.

Images of man.

English literature.

Senior composition (summer school graduate only).

Consumer home management.

Health (sophomores or juniors).

Art I to B.

Physical science.

Life science.

American history I.

American history II.

Civics.

Algebra I.

Algebra II.

Pre-algebra.

And general mathematics.

No driver safety or driver training classes are scheduled.

Students will register for all classes at their guidance office.

Registration will occur between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. on May 24, 25 and 26, and from 8 a.m. until noon on Friday, May 27.

Fees must be paid at the time of registration.

Registration choices 3 and 4 (alternates) will be treated as requests if choices 1 and 2 cannot be met. "Do not list classes that you are unwilling to take," a spokesman is emphasizing.

Students will report to the auditorium at South at 8 a.m. Friday, June 3, to receive schedule cards and then attend classes.

Late registration will occur between 10 a.m. and 12 noon June 3, 6 and 7 in the school's main office. Late registration will be permitted for classes where there is room.

Those registering late will begin classes the day following registration, thereby forfeiting a day of attendance for each day's late entry.

Registration is final, and students cannot change their schedules.

Students may not register for classes in which they are presently enrolled, unless there has been a definite failure in that class.

Registration to cover a current failure will take place Friday, May 27, until 12 noon.

Attendance policies are as follows:

1. Classes missed in summer school may not be made up.

2. A student may be absent from class a maximum of three times before being dropped from the class enrollment.

3. All days prior to a student's actual class attendance will be counted as absences.

4. All students must be in attendance the last day of summer school, July 15, no matter how few absences a student may have.

5. More than three absences from a class will result in an automatic "drop" from that class. The student's parent or guardian notifies the school authority of illness, death in the family or extenuating circumstances; in such cases, the student will be dropped with an "W" grade, representing withdrawal from the class.

6. Students with a cumulative passing grade may receive a "W" (withdrawal) from a course with no penalty other than forfeiture of their registration fee at any time.

However, students may not withdraw and enroll in another course.

7. Tardies of over 30 minutes will count as an absence in the class.

8. Tardies of one to 30 minutes will be counted in five-minute increments, accumulating to a total of 30 minutes. Each 30-minute accumulation equals one class absence.

Selected as members of the band were Myles Epper-son, John Lottstetter, Chuck Mann and Amy Thompson.

Participating in "commercial" were Amy Ritz, Dawn Kosloff, Eric Kuenkler, Liz Oyen, Daleana Roberts, Laura Rongey, Steve Shelton and Gail Vardy.

After six weeks of writing, revising and rehearsing, the show was taped at the studios of South-Western Cable TV in Maryville.

Schroeder said the show is scheduled to be shown on Channel 1 on the "Weekly Roundup" series on the following days and times: Tuesday, May 24, at 6 p.m.; Wednesday, May 25, and Thursday, May 26, at 1 p.m.; Friday, May 27, at 10:30 p.m.; Saturday, May 28, at 10:30 p.m.; and Monday, May 30, at 1 p.m.

The TV production was one of many projects these seminar students participated in during the 1982-83 school year.

Other areas studied included America's economic system, death and dying, the nation's judicial system and the history and theories of manned flight.

At 8:45 a.m. last Monday, Rongey reported that a door had been pulled open on a building and a gas heater valued at $300 and a staple hammer worth $30 were removed.

Two burglaries reported Monday in the 2100 block of Orville Avenue in the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

Sr. citizens worry about drug costs, tax levels, utility rates

BY STATE SENATOR SAM VADALABENE
The gray panthers have teeth.

If you don't believe it, trade places for but a few days with any Illinois legislator. The senior citizens' lobby means business, believe me.

The Illinois General Assembly is responding to the requests of its elderly. Let me give you some examples in addition to the programs discussed previously.

We are currently researching a method by which senior citizens can participate in a state pharmaceutical assistance program whereby the state could provide monetary assistance to seniors in need of medication.

No one should be denied, because of indigence, quality medical care. And quality medical care includes quality medication.

Which brings us to what I believe is the most crucial issue which will face the Illinois General Assembly, short of our fiscal status.

There is not one of us who has not been troubled by the course our state's energy policies have followed. And "troubled" may be too mild a word to use when we talk about skyrocketing prices of electricity and natural gas.

People on fixed income — and most of those on fixed income are senior citizens — suffer the most from the ever-increasing cost of heating their homes.

There have been several proposals which attempt to deal with the problem of high utility costs in Illinois.

First, the most widely publicized recommendation is probably the suggestion that Illinois change its way of placing members on the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The commerce commission is the government body which determines whether or not an Illinois utility company gets all, a part of, or no increase in a utility rate.

Under the membership of the current commission, utility rates — for whatever reason — have simply gone through the roof.

Perhaps it is a knee jerk reaction. Perhaps not. But the cold fact of the matter is that the public has reacted bitterly to the increasingly heavy financial burden which we have assumed to keep ourselves from freezing in our homes in the winter.

Currently, the members of the Illinois Commerce Commission are appointed to staggered terms by the governor and are subject to approval by the Senate.

We in the legislature this year will be studying legislation which would result in the election by the general public of the commerce commission.

A person's gut reaction to the proposal is probably one of 100 percent agreement and support. But an elected commerce commission would not, unfortunately, be a panacea for our problems.

There are several serious questions surrounding the debate on an elected commerce commission. For example, would the rank-and-file citizen really benefit from an elected commerce commission?

Before I, as an elected official, could vote for any such proposal, I would have to be assured without doubt that high-powered utility interests could not and would not contribute so heavily to commerce commission candidates' treasuries so as to tip the scales in favor of candidates who would owe their political souls to the utility companies.

Secondly, there are times when a utility company is in legitimate need of a rate adjustment.

When such a time might arise under a commerce commission which is facing a tough re-election campaign, it would be utterly impossible to pass a rate hike.

But the prospects of passage of legislation requiring an elected commission are in my estimation, better than at any other time in the history of this state.

However, the proposition of an elected commerce commission is not alone as a possible restructuring of our utility system in Illinois.

One proposal which I am studying very closely, and may very well support, is the concept of an Illinois Citizens Utility Board.

Legislation to create a Citizens Utility Board has already been filed in Springfield and will probably be among the first to receive a full hearing.

The Citizens Utility Board — known as the "CUB" — would be a panel made up of experts and funded by voluntary contributions from utility customers from across the State of Illinois.

These experts, such as attorneys and legislative experts, would in effect represent the interests of consumers whenever a rate increase request is pending before the commerce commission.

Under our present system, utility companies enter rate change hearings armed with powerful attorneys and legislative lobbyists. You, on the other hand, are without a professional advocate.

I liken the situation to the story of David and Goliath. The major difference in my analogy is, however, that little David rarely wins in this modern-day confrontation.

With the CUB, the consumer would be represented by expertly trained, lawyers who would argue against rate increases requested because of the requests' lack of merit.

The Citizens Utility Board would be funded by voluntary contributions from consumers throughout Illinois. As of yet, it has not been determined what that annual contribution would be.

One suggestion has been made that senior citizens would be granted a reduced fee for membership. I would support such a suggestion.

No matter what course the 83rd General Assembly charts for itself, you as citizens of the state should make every effort to participate.

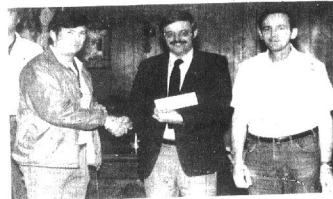

I have stressed the importance of legislative activity among senior citizens. Legislative activity does not start in the polling place. In fact, that is the culmination of what the government process in a democracy is all about.

While your vote itself is very important, very special and very critical to the democratic process, you owe it to yourself and your family and friends to get involved in your government.

If something bothers you, if something appears to be wrong in government, do not hesitate to make a phone call; do not hesitate to write a letter.

I know for a fact that a legislator is not the recipient of divine revelation just because he or she received more votes than an opponent. We are representatives of the people who put us in office — you.

And you collectively and individually are the most important elements of government.

He was released the same night after posting a $102 cash bond.

Emergency food and shelter grants of $137,170 offered

The River Bend United Way of Alton has been notified that Madison, Jersey and Calhoun Counties will receive federal emergency grants to supplement food and shelter programs in their areas, including the Quad-City area. Madison County will receive $137,170, Jersey County $9,948 and Calhoun County $3,690.

Grants were awarded based on unemployment during 1982 and on data submitted by River Bend United Way outlining the number of people at risk. This decision was made by a National Board of Voluntary Organizations chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). The board was charged to distribute $50 million appropriated by Congress to help expand the capacity of feeding and shelter programs in high need areas throughout the country.

River Bend United Way will convene a local board in each county to establish operating procedures and to determine how funds awarded to the three counties will be distributed.

John H. Blair Jr., executive director of River Bend United Way, stated the emergency food and shelter grants will be coordinated through the United Way's Community Service Program. Community Service Director Bill Crews will represent United Way on all local boards.

Under the terms of the grant from the National Board, Local organizations selected to receive funds must be not-for-profit, have a voluntary board of directors, have an acceptable accounting system and annual audit, practice non-discrimination and have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and shelter programs.

In Madison County, the board will consist of the following individuals: River Bend United Way, Bill Crews; Tri-Cities Area United Way, George Cook and George Knecht; Alton American Red Cross - Alton-Wood River Chapter, Kathleen Kienstra, and Tri-Cities Chapter, Gwen O'Guin; Salvation Army

Alton Corps, Capt. John Rehmick, and Tri-Cities Corps, the Rev. Louis Frick; Catholic Charities, the Rev. Maurice Quiglan; Protestant Welfare Association, Harold Krohne and Norma Petty; Madison County EOC, Ruben J. Williams, and representing Madison County government, Mary Kane.

Lee Hart to stop in Granite City Friday

Mrs. Lee Hart, a possible "First Lady" of the United States, will visit Granite City on Friday. She is the wife of U.S. Senator Gary Hart of Colorado, one of the front-running Democratic party candidates for the 1984 Presidential election.

Approximately 150 ladies are expected to join Mrs. Hart for breakfast at Charlie's Restaurant.

Arriving in St. Louis tonight, Mrs. Hart will be the houseguest of Mrs. Stephanie Friedman of Ladue, Mo., formerly of Madison.

Gary and Lee Hart have been married for 25 years and have two children. Andrea is 18 years old and a freshman at the University of Maryland. John is a junior in high school.

Mrs. Hart is a real estate agent in suburban Maryland, where the Harts live when not in their Colorado home.

Mrs. Hart was born in Lawrence, Kansas, and attended public schools in Kansas City, Mo. She attended Bethany College in Oklahoma City, Okla., where she majored in speech, drama and English.

She taught sophomore and junior English in public schools until the birth of her first child. In high school, she graduated third in the class of 235 and was president of the Honor Society.

She and her husband were both resident directors of student housing at Yale University in New Haven, Conn., for three years.

She continued her education at Maryland University and was very active in the McGovern Presidential Campaign.

Her two favorite hobbies are skiing and tennis.

Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles and Democratic Central Committee woman Josephine Krause of Collinsville are acting as co-hostesses here.

Mrs. Hart's visit to St. Louis and the Metro-East area is being coordinated by Illinois Friends of Gary Hart. Organizers of the activities are Tom Hooks of Collinsville, formerly of Venice, Joe Wilkins of Springfield, Terry Toth of Maryville and W. P. "Mick" Strange of Madison.

Mrs. Hart is being met at the St. Louis Lambert Airport by an honor guard of Police Explorer Scouts of Post 104 from Madison.

Following her visit here Friday, Mrs. Hart will participate in the Jefferson Day ceremonies in St. Louis. She will be leaving Friday evening for Chicago, according to Strange.

HOW TO MAKE THE MOST MONEY YOUR MONEY CAN MAKE.

With all the different interest rates it's hard to decide how to get the most for your money. One way to eliminate this uncertainty is to lock in today's high rates with one of our longer term CD's.

	Current Interest Rate * %	Effective Annual Yield ** %
24 Month CD	9.500	9.964
30 Month CD	9.600	10.074
42 Month CD	9.750	10.239
60 Month CD	10.000	10.515

*These rates effective from May 19th thru May 23, 1983.

**This yield achieved if principal and interest remain on deposit for the term. Federal regulations require a substantial penalty for early CD withdrawal.

You can open one of these certificates for just $500. But with rates like these, you'll want to put most of your money to work making the most it possibly can.

YOU MAKE MORE MONEY EVERY DAY.

If you compare long term certificates, you'll find that some don't offer daily compounding. This means you're not getting the most for your money.

"Our health insurance covers just about everything."

Does yours?

"We call our health insurance, Shelter Comprehensive Health Insurance. And for a lot of good reasons. For example, we pay maximum benefits up to $1,000,000 to keep pace with today's rising medical costs. That means doctor visits, prescriptions, unlimited expenses for a semi-private hospital room, and any surgical expenses and treatment of disease or injury. Now that's what we call coverage."

Ordain Rev. Wilson

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

The Rev. Harold Wilson Sr. of Venice, was among 21 ministers ordained in the Illinois District of the Assemblies of God in services at Calvary Temple Church in Springfield, Ill.

HAROLD WILSON SR.

More than 700 attended the annual ordination and recognition services, part of a two-day statewide convention at the Springfield church.

Rev. Wilson is president of the Madison Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and has been employed as a Madison County sheriff's deputy for the past 10 years.

The Rev. Richard W. Dorch of Carlinville, state superintendent, presided at the services and conducted the ordination.

Presentation of the ordination candidates was by the Rev. Norman L. Surratt, who also introduced other ministers attending.

Music for the services was provided by noted musician, Jack Searle, and the 80-voice Calvary Temple Choir, directed by Rod Latta.

Principal speaker was the Rev. Everett Stenhouse, superintendent of the Southern California District Assemblies of God.

The Rev. Wilson is assistant pastor of New Hope Fellowship Church in Edwardsville. The church is the first black Assembly of God Church in the northern section of the bi-state metropolitan area.

The local minister holds a master's degree in Education with emphasis in Counseling from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

He received his bachelor's degree in the Administration of Justice from McKendree College in Lebanon.

Since joining the Madison County Sheriff's Department in 1973, the Rev. Wilson has earned an associate degree in Law Enforcement from Bellevue Area College, in addition to his B.S. and M.S. degrees.

Rev. Wilson joined the U. S. Army in 1963 and completed paratrooper training and other schooling as a helicopter technician prior to being assigned to the 101st Airborne Division.

In the military, he served tours of duty in the Far East and Africa and for a period of time at the American Embassy in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

Prior to becoming a deputy sheriff, Rev. Wilson was employed by the U. S. Post Office from 1968 to 1973 and previously worked for General Motors Corp. in St. Louis.

He and his wife, the former Lois Collins, are the parents of three children, Harelyn, 15, Shawndell, 9, and Harold Jr., 3 years.

Rise in area gasoline costs

Motorists are paying about 12 cents more per gallon for gasoline since March of this year, according to a survey by the AAA-Auto Club of 55 stations on main highways in Missouri, Illinois and Kansas.

Despite the increase in prices, which includes a rise of five-cents in the federal motor fuel tax effective April 1, drivers are paying three-cents less per gallon, for certain grades, than a year ago.

Motorists can still save by shopping around for fuel. High and low prices continue to show a wide variation.

For example, regular gas at full-service pumps can cost as little as $1.12 per gallon or as much as $1.45.

Self-service prices range from $1.06 to $1.24 per gallon.

Traveling over the Memorial Day weekend should pose no difficulty in finding available fuel. The club's survey found 75 percent of the stations contacted will have some hours of operation on Memorial Day, with 16 percent operating 24 hours a day.

It's easy to clean a Thermal-Gard window. Just tilt it in and snap it right back in place. Many owners say Thermal-Gard windows are worth the price for this feature alone!

Don't throw your energy money out the window.

If you live in a home built before 1970, you're probably throwing a lot of time and money out the window. In fact, research indicates you're losing close to 50% of your home's energy. Not to mention the time it takes to clean, service, and change your windows each season.

With Thermal-Gard insulated replacement windows, your energy dollars stay inside where they belong. Because Thermal-Gard provides a full inch of dead air space between you and the elements — the most effective window insulation system available. Your home stays warmer in winter, cooler in summer.

And Thermal-Gard windows virtually eliminate:

- ☐ storm windows
- ☐ changing screens
- ☐ sticking and jamming
- ☐ drafts, frosting and fogging
- ☐ window maintenance

Asphalt Shingles Rise to New Heights

The terms improve, beautify and modernize are often used interchangeably in home remodeling. That's because contemporary building materials often allow homeowners to upgrade the eye appeal and value of their home in a single remodeling project.

Reroofing is one example. It wasn't too long ago that a new roof looked pretty much like the old one. But times have changed. A new generation of asphalt shingles offers distinctive shadow lines that give the roof a rich, rugged appearance. Available in earthtone colors, these three-dimensional asphalt shingles enhance the roof's visual prestige. A longer design life, low maintenance and fire resistance top off the new roofing's attributes.

The Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association says the long amortization period makes multi-layered asphalt shingles an economical choice for homeowners who want longlasting, good-looking roofs. Amortization is the cost of the roof per year of service; that is, material and labor costs divided by the years in the roof's design life. Application usually costs the same regardless of the design life of the shingle. Since asphalt shingles frequently can be applied over the previous roofing, tear-off costs are eliminated.

After durability, most homeowners base their choice of shingles on attractive color and design. To get the most from these benefits, ARMA suggests the following:

Coordinate the house and its site. Earthtone shades of brown and beige help to blend a home with its natural surroundings.

Correct any architectural flaws. A dark roof visually lowers a too-tall house. A light roof, on the other hand, adds height to a squat-looking home.

Give the house curb appeal. Top it with a distinctive looking roof in an eye-appealing color.

ARMA offers these cautions about color; don't use more than three for the roof, siding and trim and choose a roof color you can live with for a good many years.

More information on roofing is in an illustrated brochure, "A Homeowner's Guide to Quality Roofing." To get a copy, send 50 cents to ARMA, Box 3248, Grand Central Station, New York, New York 10163. †

New Roofs Enhance Homes

A ROOF IS A ROOF IS A ROOF... (with apologies to Gertrude Stein) but, how many people do you know who believe that is true? "What's a roof?" they say. "If it's sturdy, weatherproof, and hasn't sprung a leak in the past ten years, why should we bother to do anything with it?" Maybe, they don't have the right attitude. To some people, buying a new roof is far more uninteresting than buying a new car or furniture. Now's the time to perk up their interest and show them how a new roof will greatly improve the appearance of a house as well as increase the total comfort of the home. How...very simply, and at a lower cost than buying an automobile. Be the first in your neighborhood to renovate that much forgotten roof. GAF Corporation, for example, has been manufacturing Timberline asphalt shingles to the roofing industry for over 25 years. These self-sealing wind and fire resistant shingles can be supplied in seven natural, earth-tone colors with the look of rustic wood shakes but with none of the problems. You could initiate a community improvement campaign when your friends see the positive effect of your beautiful new roof. It won't just be a roof is a roof is a roof anymore! †

FOLLOW "GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY"

If you're looking to hire an insulation contractor, begin by asking friends and neighbors for recommendations. It's a good place to start, says the Mineral Insulation Manufacturers Association.

Spring home improvements are a wise investment

Home remodeling is on the increase this year

Home remodeling expenditures will near the $60 million mark in 1983 to make it a record year for improving the old homestead, according to the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI).

Of that figure, 66 percent will be installed by professionals and, according to Department of Commerce estimates, about half that amount will be added by do-it-yourselfers.

Economy isn't major factor

And, it will happen this way even if the economy fails to complete its apparent turnaround, says NARI.

NARI is the association of the professionals. It includes remodeling contractors, distributors, manufacturers, utilities and the trade press, representing all facets of residential and light commercial renovation. It combines the memberships of the former National Remodelers Assn. and the National Home Improvement Council, which merged last year.

NARI President Neil Kelly, an Oregon contractor, and Board Chairman Sam Graziano, a New Jersey distributor, agree that the condition of the economy will not be a major factor in 1983 growth.

"The folks need to improve their homes. It's as simple as that," said Kelly. "Over the last few decades as inflation rates increased, homeowners tended to move into new homes to reflect their own progress. The higher prices of new homes now inhibit that solution, so the answer for the '80s is home improvement."

Graziano voiced NARI's expectations of an improved economic climate in 1983: "It obviously has started to turn around," he said, "with the dropping of the prime interest rate, home mortgage rates and consumer loan rates. That will stimulate action in the remodeling sector. It should also stimulate new home buying, and that is good for the remodeling industry."

When to remodel

"It is not generally realized that 10 percent of all homeowners do some remodeling within the first two years after they buy the home, and within the first six years nearly a third of them do some significant remodeling."

According to Elaine Mur-lion roofing jobs, and 1.3 million siding jobs. She added that it also includes 17 million replacement and prime windows and 12 million doors.

Murray noted that the public will get a better break than ever before in history "because we all are working to make it a better, more responsive and more responsible industry."

Professional quality

She said much of the association's effort is directed to education within the industry, adding: "Remodeling contractors are much more customer-oriented than they were a dozen years ago. They are more sophisticated both in business management and in service, and that means their customers will get better value for their money than ever before."

"But," she advises the remodeling-buying public, "when you go looking for a contractor, be sure you get a real professional who has a place of business and is a member of the community."

Handy Solution for Those with No Outlet

There's a way to install a ceiling fan even if you don't have an electrical outlet in your ceiling. Nichols-Kusan, Inc., manufacturer of Old Jacksonville ceiling fans, offers optional swag kits. These allow you to hang the electric cord across the ceiling and down a wall to an outlet.

Rate of Rise Slows Down

Although property taxes are still rising, they apparently are increasing at a slower rate, according to the Tax Foundation, a non-profit tax research group.

During fiscal 1980 the total of all state and local property taxes rose only 5.5 percent compared with an 8.7 percent annual increase from 1970 to 1978.

Designing Computers

Draftsmen may be going the way of milk in glass bottles. According to a newsletter on automation, more than nine out of ten architectural and engineering firms will be using computers for their design work by 1990.

Many New Windows Are Pain-Less

Painting the outside of your house every few years can leave even the most ambitious homeowner tired. There are, however, ways to reduce, if not eliminate, some maintenance chores.

Many of today's wood windows, for example, are available with a low-maintenance exterior cladding that all but eliminates the need for periodic painting.

Storm Windows Can Reduce Your Mounting Fuel Bills

The joys of summer can lull you into forgetting winter fuel bills, which may be higher than necessary if drafty old windows rob your home of heat.

Such energy loss can be reduced by as much as 40 percent by adding sturdy aluminum storm sash and caulking around the original (prime) windows.

With oil prices remaining at high levels and the cost of natural gas increasing as it becomes deregulated, this type of home improvement can pay for itself within a few years, as well as add to your comfort.

For example, if you have 250 square feet of window area, heat with oil at $1.25 a gallon, and live in Duluth, Minn. (a 10,000 degree day climate), you could save approximately $530 a year by adding storm windows. If you live in the same size house in Bangor, Maine (with 8000 degree days), you could save about $425 annually.

Even if you live in a less severe climate like Wilmington, Delaware (with 5000 degree day weather), savings could amount to over $250 a year.

Savings will be somewhat less with gas heat: triple the savings if you heat with electricity.

A storm window provides a second window over the original glass, and almost all of them have aluminum frames and self-storing screens. Most efficient is the multiple track, low-maintenance window which comes in standard and custom sizes to fit any size or shape opening.

The frames can be ordered in mill or anodized finishes or in baked-on enamel-coated finishes in several different colors. Brown and bronze finishes are now becoming almost as popular as white where the darker color can add an interesting contrast to light color siding.

These windows are lightweight and easy to handle and the metal won't shrink, swell or rot.

Installed over single-glazed windows, which have been properly sealed, these aluminum storm units create double-glazed windows; over double-glazed insulated prime windows they form a triple-glazed unit which gives maximum protection for particularly cold areas and helps to further reduce fuel use.

Storm windows not only keep out the cold in winter, but allow air conditioning to work at more efficient levels during the summer months. Screens slide easily into place when the temperature climbs.

When you're shopping for storm windows, look for neat, strong joints in the aluminum frames, thick weatherstripping and heavy glass. Also, check the window's U-value. This rating indicates the ability of the window's various components to insulate. The lower the U-value, the greater the window's ability to prevent heating or cooling loss.

Also, be sure the window has the AAMA (Architectural Aluminum Manufacturers Association) Certification label. It tells you that the window has passed tough tests approved by the American National Standards Institute.

You can have aluminum storm windows installed any time of year, but it's wise not to wait until the first cold snap because then suppliers find it difficult to keep up with orders.

After they're installed, be sure you take the 15 percent income tax credit up to a maximum of $300 that Uncle Sam allows you for this type energy-saving improvement.

For more information, write for a free booklet, "A Homeowner's Guide to Choosing Windows," to the Aluminum Window Information Bureau, 818 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

MULTIPLE-TRACK ALUMINUM STORM WINDOW, measured to precise fit, is set into matching casing. Addition of aluminum storm sash to properly caulked prime single-glazed windows can reduce energy loss through windows by as much as 40 percent. Baked-on enamel-coated finishes make them virtually maintenance free; light weight makes them easy to handle.

Spring Is a Good Time To Replace Leaky Windows

If last winter's cold winds left you a legacy of high heating bills, and this summer's cooling bills are expected to be just as costly, it's time to cut those costs by making your home more energy efficient.

Adequate insulation is important, but many homeowners don't realize that up to 45 percent of a home's heat or air conditioning can be lost through windows that are loose, weatherworn or not properly fitted. Windows 25 or more years old are especially likely to have these problems.

Cold winter air infiltrates the home through faulty windows and heat escapes outside. The problem reverses itself with air conditioning in the summer. Either way, it all ends up costing the homeowner a great deal of extra money in wasted fuel at a time of soaring utility costs.

How can you tell if your windows have a significant leakage problem?

An easy test is to take a lighted candle and move it around the edge of the window frame on a cool day. If the flame starts to flicker or die out, you probably have an air leakage problem.

A small leak can usually be "cured" by proper application of caulking, weather stripping or sealing tape.

A major leak, however, may call for replacement windows.

Wood and aluminum are traditional materials for replacement window frames, but the most modern, durable and economical window frames are made of vinyl. Vinyl windows are gaining acceptance in the U.S., and have been popular in European housing for more than 40 years. In West Germany, for example, over 40 percent of the new windows being installed in residential housing are vinyl.

Vinyl windows are impervious to denting and rotting, resistant to moisture and easy to clean. Maintenance costs are reduced since the color is the same throughout and painting is never necessary. The problem of condensation, common in other window types, is eliminated since vinyl is a low conductor of heat.

With vinyl window frames, the existing window can be measured and new windows fabricated to exact specifications. These are replaced from the inside and on average require no more than one to two hours per window.

The new windows are fully assembled with durable weather stripping and insulating glass. Air-tight construction eliminates infiltration of air around the frame and through the small openings between the frame and sash.

Practice preventive maintenance to keep home in good condition

High interest rates on new home mortgages coupled with the cost of moving has many homeowners choosing to stay where they are.

To maintain its value, an existing home has to be kept in good repair. Some preventive maintenance, such as twice a year inspections indoors and out, should provide adequate warning so homeowners aren't confronted with spur of the moment decisions on needed repairs.

The roof is a good example. Too many homeowners ignore the roof until it is in such bad shape that it has to be replaced immediately. The roof, like other components of a home, should be examined periodically to determine its condition.

Signs of a roof in need of replacement include curled, cracked and missing shingles. If spotted early, the homeowner can plan reroofing just as carefully as any other improvement project. Among the decisions to be made are the material to be used, its design life, color and the cost of reroofing.

Asphalt shingles can, in many cases, be applied over the old roof, eliminating the cost of a tearoff. Consider investing in three-dimensional asphalt shingles with a design life of up to 25 years or more.

Available in attractive earth-tone colors, these shingles require only minimal maintenance.

At the same time, their multi-layered appearance creates rugged, attractive shadow lines.

To estimate the probable annual cost of a new roof, add the cost of labor and materials and divide the result by the years in the design life of the shingle. The longer lasting shingle may cost less in the long run because the cost of materials and labor is amortized over a longer period of time.

More information can be found in "A Homeowner's Guide to Quality Roofing." To obtain a copy, send 50 cents to the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association, Box 3248, Grand Central Station, New York, NY 10163.

Install Insulation

Although the "bark" of the energy crisis has abated somewhat, its "bite" is still painful: Homeowners will be paying more to heat and light their homes in the years to come.

Consumer electricity rates alone increased 4.8 percent in 1981 and are expected to continue to rise annually at a rate of 9 percent, according to Data Resources, Inc. The cost of natural gas — which jumped 20 percent last year — is also expected to increase as is the cost of home heating oil.

Probably the single, most effective means of saving on the costs of heating and cooling a home is to add adequate insulation in walls, ceilings, and floors.

Insulation is rated in R-values. These "R-values" measure the material's ability to resist heat loss in winter and heat gain in summer. The higher the R-value, the greater the insulating power. Insulation should therefore be chosen by R-values and not inches.

Generally speaking, R-30 or R-38 insulation in attics, R-11 or R-13 for walls and R-19 for floors above cold spaces are the recommended levels for most parts of the United States. However, even higher R-values may be economically justified by fuel savings in colder sections of the country.

Build in a microwave oven as do-it-yourself kitchen project

Since microwave ovens were first introduced in 1955, they have become such an accepted and important addition to the kitchens of America that many homeowners now prefer to have their microwaves built-in, making them a permanent addition to the kitchen and saving valuable counter space.

Relatively simple to do

While many types of built-in microwaves are available from manufacturers or through professional remodelers, the "do-it-yourselfer" can now put in a microwave combined with a conventional electric oven in the same space, following a relatively simple process. The built-in combination is Tappan model 57-2400.

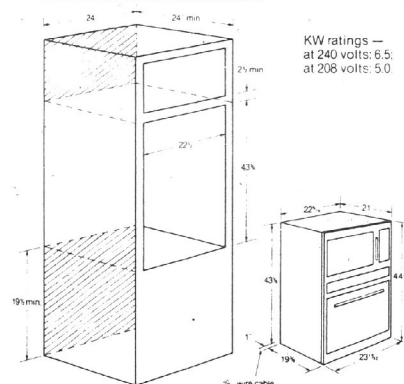

This procedure requires only one cutout, one electrical hook-up (for combination with electric ovens only), and fits a standard 24 inch oven cabinet in which many existing electric oven built-ins were originally installed.

Installation guidelines

The following step-by-step guidelines are offered by Tappan for do-it-yourself installation:

1. In a 24-inch oven cabinet, cut out an opening 22½ inches wide, by 43¾ inches high. There should be a minimum of

Installation Information

KW ratings —
at 240 volts: 6.5;
at 208 volts: 5.0

19½ inches from the floor to bottom of the unit.

2. Construct plywood floor flush with bottom of cutout, over 2x4 inch supports. The floor must be level to assure a level oven.

3. With the opening completed, position the oven near the cutout, and connect wires at the end of the conduit to the junction box (240 volt electrical outlet). Always disconnect main power source before working with electrical connections.

4. When wires have been connected, ease the oven into the opening until the trim is flush with the cabinet.

5. If the oven is to be installed in brick or stone, first construct a rectangular wood frame with ½ inch sides and a ¼ inch top and bottom. The inside dimensions of this frame must be the same as the opening dimensions (22½ inches wide by 43¾ inches high).

6. Place frame flush in brick opening and secure. Overhang of oven trim will cover brick and wood will not be exposed.

Wallcoverings play leading role in home decorating

Wallcoverings are playing a more important role in decorating today than they have for many years, according to a National Home Fashions League symposium entitled "Wallcovering: A Rising Star in Home Fashions," held recently in New York City.

A major factor in the increased use of wallcoverings today is the growing number of collections which offer wallcoverings that coordinate with other home products, stated panelist John Fitzgerald, vice president of marketing, Imperial Wallcoverings. The coordinations range from sheets, comforters, dust ruffles, pillow shams, draperies and rugs to bath and kitchen accessories, dinnerware and tabletop items.

This new merchandising concept provides the customer with an easy one-stop shopping service, in contrast to having to trek from one department or specialty store to another to assemble all these items, Mr. Fitzgerald added.

Foolproof decorating

These wallcovering collections, with their family of coordinates, totally eliminate the fear of making a costly mistake, stated designer Lyn Peterson. Not only do they make decorating fun and foolproof, but they enable the consumer to get a professional decorator look at a fraction of the cost of hiring a professional decorator, Ms. Peterson

COUNTRY CHARM—A miniature floral pattern in wallcovering and coordinated fabric brings warmth and richness to this New England living room. The pattern, called "Wayside Vine," is from the Erica Wilson Needlepoint Collection by Fashion, which also offers needlepoint kits which coordinate with the wallcoverings. For a copy of "The Wallcovering How-To Handbook," write to the Wallcovering Information Bureau, 66 Morris Avenue, Springfield, N.J. 07081.

Wallcovering for every decor

The great variety of wallcoverings available today means that there is something for every taste and pocketbook, stated Lionel Libson, director of advertising/sales promotion, GTR Wallcoverings. Traditional, Americana, the country look, and oriental in soft, muted colors are high in popularity. Also strong are contemporary patterns in crisp pastels and the primaries.

For the most part, today's designs are small in scale, although large-scale patterns are also plentiful for those who wish to make a bold statement. And for the decorator who simply wants a soft, warm background, there is a wide range of subtle textures in every shade imaginable, added Mr. Libson.

Selection made easy

The transformation of the wallcovering sample book has been another contributing factor to the increased use of wallcoverings, according to Mr. Libson. In this new sample book format, a number of coordinated wallcoverings and fabrics are presented by color family, enabling the home decorator to mix and match with confidence, and also make harmonious transitions from room to room.

The new sample books also feature attractive photos of room settings, which take much of the guesswork out of visualizing the finished room, Mr. Libson stated.

Retailers are now helping the consumer in selecting the right wallcovering by arranging the sample books by design category for viewing in well-lighted areas, stated Neil Janovic, vice president, Janovic Plaza, a chain of decorating stores in New York City. Many stores now stock wallcoverings, so a customer can see, touch, and walk away with her choice, providing instant gratification, instead of having to special order and wait for it, the retailer added.

Free booklet

Reformed burglar offers home security suggestions

With daytime residential burglaries alone up 37 percent in the last five years, it may be a good idea to put home security at the top of your home improvement list.

For a start, you can learn how to make your home a safer place by getting a free booklet from the home security experts at ADT.

Prepared with the assistance of a reformed burglar whose 25-year criminal career included breaking into over 4,000 homes, the booklet shows you how to significantly reduce the chance of your being victimized by one of the more than 500,000 suburban property crimes occurring each year.

Here are some of the tips offered:

- Make your home appear to be occupied at all times. If you're away, be sure the grass will be cut or the snow shoveled.
- Leave lights on—preferably controlled by timers automatically turning them on and off.
- Tell trusted neighbors and local police about vacations and other long absences.

For the free, 20-page home security booklet, write: Richard Simonetti, Box M2, ADT, One World Trade Center, New York, NY 10048.

About the house:

All-American look adds fashion excitement to world of ceramic tile

By LIS KING

Ceramic tile has made the giant leap from the bath to rooms all through the house, even the most formal and entertaining ones. Glass-walled houses furnished in the minimal manner are softened with the earthy textures and colors of natural quarry tile; country kitchens are brimming with Americana tile motifs; and city brownstones boast floors of tiles glazed to deep jewel tones.

Behind the skyrocketing appreciation of ceramic tile are the new life-styles that have emerged over the past 10 years plus sweeping product changes that have replaced tile's "for-baths-only" image with terrific fashion excitement.

According to the Tile Council of America, the millions of new two-income families, strained budgets in general, and high energy costs are factors that make tile a high-priority building and design material.

Tile's carefree ways are important to working women, explains the Council, and it is great for the combination kitchen dining/hobby room that is the center for at-home togetherness and entertaining a la the '80s. Also, consumers are now choosing high-quality materials that still look good and function well for the longest possible time, and this puts ceramic tile at the top of shopping lists.

And, naturally, tile's energy-conscious ways are of much interest to consumers everywhere. It is an excellent thermal conductor, which aids in the storage and release of both the heat and cooling breezes, and that makes it the ideal material for solar and woodburning installations as well as for cooler rooms in warm climates.

American design

But for all of its efficiency, it is still tile's new-found fashion looks that are earning it such an important place in today's home.

The most interesting of the new tile designs are uniquely American. Often they reflect the past, but in fresh, unfettered and unexpected ways. Good examples are groups of tile designs inspired by the crafts of the early colonists. These include Pennsylvania Dutch stencil and sampler motifs, buttermilk designs embossed in terracotta or rendered in blue on white, and renditions of early carousel animals, weathervanes and quilt themes.

LEATHER LOOK is sensational in ceramic tile. Wenzel introduces it in five colors: Rawhide, Cordovan, Buckskin, Suede, and Leather Brown.

The fascination with everything Oriental that has been part of the American design heritage ever since the clipper ships plied the high seas is reflected, today, in numerous tile designs. It is seen in the serene floral paintings by California artist Barbara Vantrease Beall designing for Florida Tile, and Summitville Tiles features a series of sculptured tiles depicting ancient Chinese coins.

A new generation of textures and a hand-crafted look are also giving today's American tile wonderful designer flair. Good examples are the Good Earth collection by Mid-State and American Olean's Quarry Naturals. Both feature surface variations that emphasize the products' earthy looks.

Leather finishes such as suede, rawhide and buckskin are featured by Wenzel Tile; delicate eggshell and lace finishes are seen in collections by Cambridge and Aztec; and textures become patterns in Summitville's Burlap and Reptile patterns.

A whole different kind of texture is achieved with Rubble, which consists of random pieces of quarry tile and pavers. This product, which is available from Mid-State and Universal Ceramics, offers the creative tile setter the optimum challenge.

Color trends

The broadest range of color is always found in glazed tile

for walls and countertops and, to a lesser degree, for residential floors. In this group colors abound, from neutrals to bolds, from pinks to darks. The dusky blues, golds and greens of Williamsburg are there as are the brilliant red of the flag and the denim blue of American fashion fame.

But, the neutrals are making the greatest news. The pinks—such as vanilla, parchment, buttermilk and almond—are featured in all lines of American glazed tile, and gray, a great new color that suits a very broad range of decors, now appears in many collections.

Fashion colors have also come to the world of unglazed quarry tile and pavers. These rugged products now appear in a host of earthy hues ranging from pale sandstone to dark brown as well as the classic terracotta.

The extraordinary diversification of styles and colors does not surprise the Tile Council. Says Dr. J. V. Fitzgerald, executive director: "We, more than any other people in the world, adopt and cross styles and periods with abandon. That is part of our heritage and charm... and it is the reason American designers are more imitated than imitating."

A colorful booklet showing fashion ideas with ceramic tile is available for $1.00 from the Tile Council of America, Box 2222, Princeton, NJ 08540.

A Room To Move In . . .

TO ACCOMMODATE A WRITER/EDITOR who uses her small bedroom as a home office, Scruggs-Myers Associates created this attractive, well organized study area with both general and specialized storage, shelf work space and places to put away papers. Alongside a table desk perpendicular to the window is a narrow counter with L-shape extension, above which are adjustable shelves for books, baskets and boxes. Beneath the counter, canvas pockets slung from curtain rods file such occupational impedimenta as magazines, newspapers and clippings. Behind the lift-up doors of the floor-to-ceiling storage tower facing the desk are vertical files; behind its upper doors are fabrics and linens; and its open compartments house TV set, cable unit and sewing machine. The Levolor blind striped in the room's accent colors — hot orange and dark bronze — not only provides a focal point and controls privacy, it aids in conserving energy, too. Open, the mini-slats admit sunlight; closed, they keep warm air inside — and the narrow "definition" edging that frames them helps to keep out the drafts.

It's simple to replace damaged window screens

A torn window screen is an unwelcome surprise when the warm spring air blows in. At that time, we can't wait to throw open the windows and let the breeze take the winter chill out of the house. Fixing that torn family room or kitchen screen doesn't take long, however, and it's simple to install quality screening material that's durable and attractive.

A trip to the neighborhood hardware store for repair can remedy the problem quickly. A torn screen is also a relatively simple do-it-yourself job.

The material which most accurately fills this order is aluminum screen cloth. It is easy to work with and it can be cut to fit any size window.

Aluminum is naturally non-corrosive, so the tiny latched screening continues to endure seasons of rain and blowing snow. A spring cleaning with mild soap and water or the brush attachment on a vacuum cleaner is all it takes to keep aluminum screening looking good year after year. The fine mesh also helps keep small insects out of the house and resists separating.

Aluminum screen can be used in any type of frame—wood or aluminum—and won't warp out of shape. There are different procedures for replacing screens in the two types of frames. The following steps, as well as the corresponding diagrams, show how to rescreen an aluminum frame window.

Although aluminum framing is sturdy and durable, it is important to carefully remove the frame so it will not bend or scratch. Additionally, it is a good idea to buy a sheet of screen larger than the area to be covered; the excess material provides something to hold on to when pulling the screen taut to fit the frame.

Replacing aluminum frames may involve a special inexpensive roller that forces a plastic spline into the frame channel. Frames that already have a metal retaining spline, however, require a narrow block of wood and a mallet. The repair steps are generally the same.

Either way, when the job is finished, a tighter seal is afforded with an aluminum frame set in the window.

1. Place screen panel on flat surface with the retainer spline groove facing up. Using a screwdriver, pry up the end of the spline and pull it out of the channel.

Remove old screen and clean all dirt and debris from groove. Retain the spline for use later unless it has become cracked or brittle in the case of plastic, or bent in the case of metal spline.

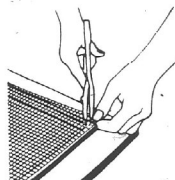

2. Measure and cut screening  $\frac{1}{4}$ " to  $\frac{1}{2}$ " larger than frame on all sides. And cut a  $\frac{1}{2}$ " diagonal corner off each corner of screening. This cut should be just at the outside edge of each corner of the groove.

3. Weight down three corners of the screening. Then, using the convex side of a double roller, roll screening down into the groove on one side of frame. Make sure the aluminum screening is crimped and firmly seated at the bottom of the channel by using a 45° angle pointing towards the inside edge of the groove.

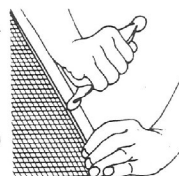

4. Seat spline firmly in the corner where you have just

4. Seat spline firmly in the corner where you have just rolled the screening. Use the concave side of the roller and roll the spline all along this side.

5. Trim off excess spline and screening with a utility knife. Use an angle across the spline so the knife can't slip and cut the newly installed screening.

Illinois Power's heaviest electric demand is during the Summer. In periods of maximum air conditioning usage, energy-efficient operation of air conditioning requires attention to good insulation and weather-tight doors and windows.

An Illinois Power home energy inspection, done in your home, will tell you how your house stacks up in energy efficiency.

The cost is just $15.00. A trained expert from Illinois Power will make a computer analysis at your home and explain recommendations for improvement then and there.

Aluminum exteriors eliminate painting chores

If you're a busy, involved homeowner trying to juggle a home and a job, periodic weekend painting and repairing the outside of your house can be an unwelcome chore. Hiring a professional to do the job is expensive.

Dingy and old house siding, trim or gutters and downspouts that need constant attention may indicate that it's time to add low-maintenance aluminum replacements.

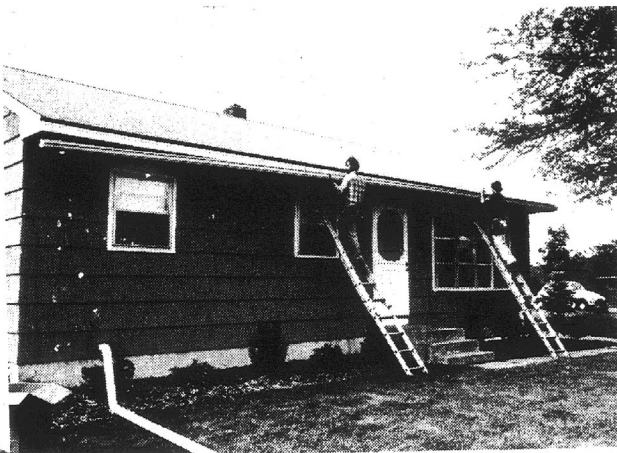

The permanently baked-on finishes of high quality aluminum siding, and matching or contrasting trim and accessories, are warranted to last up to 40 years without painting.

Resists corrosion

The material has become increasingly popular because of its proven durability and resistance to corrosion and cracking, even in damp climates. Today, most aluminum siding is installed over insulation to help retain heat inside the house.

It comes in a wide variety of styles to suit any type of architecture and in a wide range of colors and textures. There are textures which simulate wood grains so realistically that it is virtually impossible to distinguish the aluminum siding from wood without touching it.

Wood grain effects are achieved by embossing and by new two-tone coating systems which give a more pronounced wood grain appearance from a distance. Some even have the texture of a natural sawmill wood.

Variety of colors

Colors in the double-four, double-five and eight-inch panels come in a wide range of pastels and deep reds, blues, greens, browns and earth tones as well as white. Currently, ivory, cream and beige colors lead in popularity.

Many colors are also available in soffits (the underside of the roof overhang) and fascia (the trim along the edge of the roof).

Installation of soffit and fascia is usually done by an aluminum siding contractor. You can match or contrast this trim with the siding, and a skilled installer can fabricate the trim from aluminum coil stock to cover your window casings and sills.

Since these areas take a special beating from the elements and generally need repainting every other year or so, they are good candidates for aluminum replacements.

So are gutters and downspouts because they must drain water off the house efficiently and quickly.

Protective replacements

These aluminum rainware

replacements will also protect the soffit and fascia and help to keep the basement walls dry. In addition, they will prevent shrubbery from being drowned and battered during heavy rain storms.

Their pre-finished coatings eliminate the need for painting and because they do not red-rust, staining and streaking on the house is also prevented. While gutters and downspouts can be ordered in various colors, white, brown and bronze are more generally installed.

Advantages of aluminum

The light weight of aluminum rainware places less strain on house components than heavier woods or metals, and the material does not expand and contract as much as vinyl plastic. That's why even on homes re-sided with other materials, aluminum gutters are usually installed.

Aluminum gutters come in preformed sections or are formed at your home from coil stock. These new seamless gutters are aesthetically attractive and spread expansion and contraction over their entire length.

If a roof is extremely high or if most gutters are less than 20 feet or longer than 50 feet, preformed sections are often used. These should overlap at least 1½ to 2 inches and be sealed properly to prevent leaks.

Whether you update your home with one or all of these aluminum replacements, be sure you choose a reputable contractor, for his expertise is as important as the material you choose for siding, trim and rainware.

For more information, write for a free booklet entitled "A Homeowner's Guide to Choosing Siding" to the Aluminum Siding Information Bureau, 818 Connecticut Ave N.W., Washington, DC 20006.

Decorating Tip:

Hide an unsightly window air conditioner with a tier of attractive café curtains. Curtains can be kept closed when unit is not in use.

VARIETY: SPICE OF LIFE FOR MORTGAGES

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board has added a new open end variable rate mortgage to its already burgeoning arsenal of mortgage types.

Although the open end variable rate mortgage gives sav- ings and loan associations unlimited power to vary interest rates, terms and monthly payments during the life of a mortgage, competition should keep payments within reasonable bounds.

Make a simple cold frame and save on home-grown vegetables

Wouldn't it be nice to hasten spring and prolong autumn? You can with a cold frame. These "mini greenhouses" can stretch the growing season of plants and vegetables by four to eight weeks in spring or fall.

It's possible to harvest a salad outside your door during winter's cold, while super-market prices are at unseasonal highs. And, you can give seedlings a head start for later planting in a summer garden.

A trip or phone call to your local book store, library or county extension agent should equip you with a variety of cold frame designs. You may want a knock-down unit that can be disassembled during summer months, or an insulated version to assure fresh greens when snow falls.

A small cold frame near the kitchen door or built into a patio can be convenient for tending and harvesting lettuce, spinach, radishes and other vegetables.

Be sure the top of the cold frame slopes toward the south to catch maximum sunlight. A northern wall can help protect from winter winds. On mild spring days, raise the cover to prevent plants from overheating; then close the cover as temperatures drop.

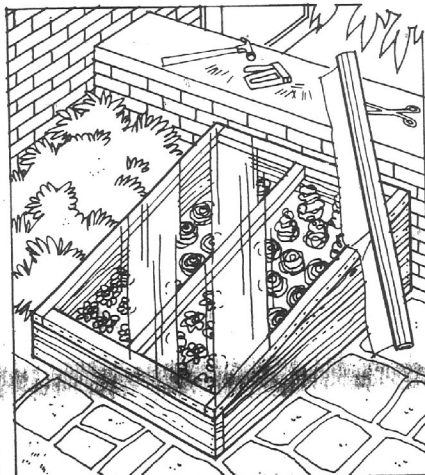

For a cover, a safe alternative to breakable glass is clear vinyl. Wrap it completely over the top and around the sides of the wood frame cover so snow and rain will slide off easily.

Vinyl should be replaced after a year or two to retain optimum clarity, but recycle this piece to other uses such as a drop cloth for painting, or an insulator over basement windows.

Good plants for cold frames include parsley, kale, Chinese cabbage, garlic, early peas, cucumbers and chives. Tomatoes, peppers and eggplants can also be grown in cold frames but are more cold sensitive, so cover with insulation such as a burlap bag filled with straw on especially cold nights.

A little research will yield other uses for your cold frame such as beginning root cuttings for new plants or forcing of spring bulbs for flowers out of season. Experiment and enjoy!

AN EASILY CONSTRUCTED COLD FRAME

Vinyl-coated ceiling puts an end to spring repainting ritual

If the need to repaint the kitchen ceiling pops up with annoying frequency on your spring cleaning agendas, maybe you don't have the right kind of ceiling.

In a busy kitchen where something always seems to be cooking, the ceiling can take nearly as much basting as the food. Grease splatters there, smoke drifts there, moisture collects there. After a winter of heavy-cooking holidays, the ceiling's appearance could make you lose your appetite.

So periodically, homeowners remedy the situation—temporarily—by slapping on new paint. This year you might try a different, longer-lasting approach. Put up a pre-finished ceiling that comes with a special coating to resist staining. It'll cost a bit more time and money initially, but could save more of both in the long run.

Made by Armstrong, these ceilings have a vinyl surface that offers nothing for grease and grime to cling to. A swish of a damp sponge removes soil with ease.

Vinyl-coated ceilings come in a choice of designs and do-it-yourself installation methods.

You can get foot-square tiles that are easily put up by one of three different methods: cementing, stapling or clipping to the old ceiling.

Or you can choose 2'x4' panels that are inserted in a metal grid hanging from the old ceiling. The grid can be suspended low enough to conceal eyesores like pipes, wires and ducts. And pre-assembled fluorescent fixtures can be fitted into the grid slots for energy-efficient, relocatable lighting.

Besides active kitchens, vinyl-coated ceilings are ideal for busy bathrooms, home workshops, kids' rooms—anyplace where the ceiling gets harsh treatment.

Plan ahead so you'll be decked out for summer

A new deck can do wonderful things for your home's appearance and your outdoor lifestyle. But before you dive into the project, take time out to do some thoughtful planning. Your project will go quicker in the long run, and you'll be happier with the results.

First, analyze your needs. What's the main purpose of the deck? Is it for sun worship or dining al fresco, to dress up an entry or provide a private getaway?

Knowing the deck's function is essential to a good plan. You may find you need several areas or levels—one for entertainment and outdoor cooking, one for sunning.

While rectangular and square decks are easiest to build, the simplest design may not be the best for you. Multiple levels can add more flair and function than one large platform in some situations.

Stake out the deck

Begin by drawing to scale on graph paper a top and side view of the house. Include major landscaping, driveways, doors, and location of utility lines underground.

Then lay out the deck on paper. Try to design it in increments of 2 feet since lumber comes in these even lengths. It will save you a lot of sawing and extra expense.

Now go outside with tape measure and 1x2 stakes and lay out the deck on the site. Determine width, then length and height by measuring the side of the house and marking where you want the top of the decking.

Tap stakes into the ground along the house where the ledger strip will go and at points somewhat beyond the exact points where posts will be placed. Mark the string with a felt pen exactly at the posts positions.

Check for square

To check the corners of the deck for square, use this simple surveying procedure with two fixed lines forming a right angle. This will be your guide for measurements.

Line #1 is always parallel to the house or other structure the deck is built against. If the deck will be detached, just run a straight line along one edge of the proposed site. Line #2 will intersect line #1 (see drawing).

Take three stakes and a nylon line and lay out a triangle. Line #1 should be 8 feet long, parallel to the wall. Stake the line at points A and B. Line #2 also connects to stake A, running to a point C' from A. Attach the line to point C several feet beyond.

Check the distance from stake C to stake B, the hypotenuse of the right triangle. When its measurement is exactly 10 feet, your corner will be square. Double check at stake A with a carpenter's square. Then, using stakes and string, lay out the entire deck, repeating the process to check each corner for square.

If building a detached deck, you can form line #1 by placing stakes along a line parallel to one edge of the deck site.

Select materials

Your next decision is what kind of wood to use. We recommend pressure treated lumber for all your outdoor project needs. Why? Several reasons: low cost, low maintenance, resistance to decay and insects, handsome finish qualities, and workability.

A process which forces pre-servatives deep into the cells of quality lumber makes pressure-treated lumber a solid choice for decking, joints and beams. And, it's essential to use only pressure-treated lumber for posts to resist decay. Use stainless steel fasteners and hot-dipped galvanized nails to resist stains.

Know the code

Also, don't forget to check your local building code before beginning construction to be sure you meet local requirements.

Be sure to follow manufacturer's instructions when using power tools. And, don't forget to wear safety goggles when using hammer or power tools.

Find the source

Your local Dealer can help you estimate the amount of lumber you will need for your plan and give you a copy of G-P's booklet, Decks & Outdoor Projects. Twelve pages that take you from the planning stages all the way to your first barbecue. Designs, diagrams and detailed instructions help you adapt any deck idea to your own home.
